Reds Aim Crushing New Assault Toward Berlin

The Three Leaders

By Emil Ludwig

This is the first of three articles by the noted historian and biographer, Emil Ludwig, analyzing and comparing the characters of Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin.—EDITOR.

Article I.

Churchill—Soldier, Nobleman, Poet

Of the four great leaders of the United Nations, Chiang Kai-shek is the only one I have not met. The other three I met long before this war, and I have written the lives of two of them. Now, in writing this series of articles, I feel myself in the position of a portraitist called upon to draw quick sketches of men he has painted in oil long ago.

When the Big Three met in Teheran, their group photo was a real treat for a psychologist. No movie producer could have invented such a group for the screen. Only reality could create this picture. Each man shows the tension caused by the presence of the other two.

Win. Churchill

Stalins head is that of a fighter—no pretension, no pose. His face hits you like a blow. The features are Asiatic, enigmatic, absolutely reserved. And yet he does not look like the sombre tyrant people would like to see in him. There is even a trace of quiet humor in him. He is dressed with the utmost military simplicity and neatness, without looking smart. As he has no nerves, or at least hides them through excellent self-control his features seem stony, although I have heard him chuckle and even laugh. He sits next to the other two world-leaders with the greatest indifference as to their looks and impressions.

Roosevelt, next to him, turns his head slightly, with an elegance peculior to him—amiable, hospita-

Four Albertans Are Decorated For Gallantry

Four Albertans are included among 74 recipients of awards for gallantry in action, previously presented, but announced only on Tuesday by national defence headquarters, Ottawa. Of the Alberta recipients, three are from Calgary and one from Three Creeks, west of Fort McMurray.

Lt.-Col. Donald George MacLaughlin, Calgary, was awarded the Distinguished Service Order for establishing and holding a bridgehead over the river Laize. He commanded the Calgary Highlanders prior to his return home on leave.

Capt. Robert E. Lucy, MBE, Calgary, was awarded the Military Cross for gallantry in action, while acting as forward observation officer with the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders of Canada during the attack on St. Andre-sur-Orne on July 20, 1944. He directed both offensive and defensive fire in a manner that was an "in-

Yanks Seize Siegfried Defences

Canadian Artillery Pounding Nazis

By JAMES M. LONG

PARIS, Jan. 30.—(AP)—As the Germans made a fresh withdrawal from part of the Netherlands and asserted that the 1st Canadian Army was heavily shelling their lines east of the Hollandsch Diep—14 miles south of Rotterdam—United States 1st Army elements today seized three miles of Siegfried line fortifications in a surprise attack through waist-deep snowdrifts in the Monschau forest, three miles inside Germany.

Lt.-Gen. Hodges' men struck just north of the eliminated Belgian bulge while other 1st Army elements moved up to the West-wall defences along 40 miles of the Ardennes front.

The United States 3rd Army expanded its Our river bridgehead nearly a mile into Germany on a two-mile front.

Berlin claimed in a separate report that British 2nd Army units were seeking to force the Roer river 27 miles southwest of Dusseldorf with major attacks. Allied reports did not substantiate this claim immediately.

Troops of the United States 3rd Army drove nearly a mile into Germany today, capturing Wechenhausen and widening its new snow-drifted invasion bridgehead over the Our to two miles, a little more than a dozen miles from the Siegfried pivot of Prum. Nearby Stupbach in Belgium also was taken.

The little German village of Welchenhausen is eight miles south of St. Vith and was taken against stubborn resistance. The 3rd Army already was across the narrow, shallow Our river and in the outer fringes of the Siegfried line, the main works of which are two to three miles east.

The rugged terrain, deep snow and absence of east-west roads preclude any spectacular gains in that area.

The U.S. 1st Army also was driving into the Siegfried line from the now-vanished Ardennes bulge area.

Fairly heavy movements of Germans were spotted pulling back into the Reich from the Holland section east of Ijssel Meer (Zuyder Zee) and RAF Mosquitos harassed the foe. German withdrawals east-

Dairy Monopoly Seen in Co-Op. Tax Exemption

REGINA, Jan. 30—(CP)—Existing conditions under which dairy co-operatives are extempted from income and excess profits tax are "undermining public interests" and the longer they are permitted to continue the greater the danger of a dairy industry monopoly being created, said a brief of 12 independent dairies presented to the Royal Commission on Taxation of Co-Operatives here yesterday.

S. P. Grosch, of Regina, counsel for the independent dairies, said in presenting the brief that co-operatives benefitting from wartime business and exemption from taxation were expanding their business quickly in Saskatchewan.

CONFISCATION SEEN

"Unfair, unjust and discriminating taxation has reached a point where it means confiscation," said Mr. Grosch.

Conditions tending to the creation of monopoly in basic food stuffs were being created.

The brief contained a review of the operations of the Dairy Co-Op-

Nazis Admit "Dent" Made by Canucks

LONDON, Jan. 30—(CP)—The German radio today said repeated Canadian infantry and tank attacks north of Capelle in the Gerruidenburg area of the Netherlands south of the Mass ((Meuser) river have "secured a slight dent" in German lines.

Earlier enemy reports had reported Canadians hitting at a German bridgehead in this sector "with flame-throwing tanks and fog-throwers."

Another German report had told of "fierce and bloody fighting" in the area east of Gertruidenburg.

The German radio said the British 2nd Army had launched major attacks north of the Geilenkirchen-Dusseldorf railroad "to enforce a crossing of the Roer river at Hilfarth," 27 miles southeast of the great Rhine city.

The battle progressed throughout the night with British units attacking from the north and south, the enemy said. The Germans claimed they had recaptured St. Odilienberg, 2½ miles south of Roermond.

Berlin Police Fire on Crowd Hungry Women

BERN, Jan. 30—(AP)—A Berlin dispatch to the Feuille d'Avis de Neuchatel said today that police in the German capital fired into a throng of famished women who overturned a truckload of potatoes yesterday. They wounded 37 of the women.

The Neuchatel newspaper's story said a foreign worker was killed by police bullets.

Hunger and severe cold are causing suffering and misery among thousands of refugees driven to the capital by th Russian advance, the story added.

The account said 27 refugees, including five children, were found frozen to death, and that all day long refugees were burning park benches in an effort to warm themselves. They overturned trams and set fire to them while police looked on without interfering, the story added.

German Civilians Flee Konigsberg: Suburbs on Fire

LONDON, Jan. 30. — (CP) — The suburbs of besieged Konigsberg, capital of East Prussia, are in flames and the civilian population is fleeing through blizzards to Port Pillau at the tip of the Samland peninsula, 25 miles west of the city the German radio reported today.

The broadcast, quoting a Nazi war correspondent from inside the city, said the outskirts of the fortress city were set afire by the "incessant rain of Russian shells"

Major Question

Soviets Want Allied Offensive In West

By JON KIMCHE
Reuters Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 30. — (Reuters)—Greatest question of the moment is not whether the Russians now will advance so many more miles into Germany, but whether Gen. Eisenhower can launch a complementary offensive while the German rout is on.

Soviet military circles make no secret of their preoccupation with this problem. While they give no indication whether or not they expected such staggering results from the first onslaught of their winter offensive, they are undoubtedly concerned with the fullest exploitation of this present opportunity.

Earlier views expressed in London were that it would be difficult to mount a major offensive in the west under present weather conditions, after breaking Field Marshal von Rundstedt's offensive launched less than eight weeks from the start of the Russian attack. The Russians were seriously perturbed in their press comment on this report.

CHANGE IN WEST

But now a change seems to have come over the western front which may result in a further revision and speeding up of plans to attack.

The second Rundstedt offensive in Alsace—was all set for a start and had made some noteworthy progress. But now all signs point to his calling off this attack in the face of the greater danger threatening Germany from the east.

The moment, however, the Germans abandoned their plan to attack in Alsace, they surrendered the initiative in the west. The roles now are reversed. Gen. Eisenhower can concentrate against extended German lines which are being thinned out by demands from the east.

Allied Naval Force Hitting at Germans

PARIS, Jan. 30.—(AP)—An Allied naval force now is engaged "in active though small-scale operations against the enemy" among Netherlands Islands north of Walcheren, Admiral Sir Harold M. Burroughs said today.

The new Allied naval commander-in-chief added significantly of future operational possibilities:

"The coasts of Germany and the remainder of western Europe still occupied by the enemy offer opportunities for the use of sea power, such as the assault on Walcheren, which turned the key to the Port of Antwerp."

Numerous islands have been carved in southwest Holland by the rivers Rhine and Maas (Meuse) as they meet the sea. Most important of these still in enemy hands are Schouwen, Noord Beveland, Goeree, Tholen, Orne Putten and Tien Gemeten. Frequent German troop concentrations have been noted and raided on Schouwen.

Germans Urge Allied Soldiers To Quit Fight

ROME, Jan. 30 — (AP) — The Germans resumed a loudspeaker and leaflet propaganda on both the 5th and 8th Army fronts last night and the German air force dropped bombs on scattered points.

Near Monte Belmonte, the Germans fired propaganda leaflets directing American soldiers "how to become ill in order to be evacuated." In the 8th Army sector near the Adriatic sea, the Germans used loudspeakers as well as gun-fired leaflets in exhorting Italian troops along the Senio river lined to desert.

It Says Here

COLORADO SPRINGS, Jan. 30. — We stopped at Colorado Springs to do a couple of shows at Peterson Army Air Field. That's a B-29 Base and the guys here all have "Tokyo Bound" stamped on their papers. Believe me, the fliers here are really a varsity squad. They're picked men, chosen from every air force in the country, and when you put boys like that all together in one group and give them a killer like the B-29 to work with you've really got a first team that's going to score. If Hirohito could get a look at these kids, see the expressions on their faces, hear their conversation in the barracks . . . brother, he'd start ordering his future kimonos with steel vests! Their boss, Gen. Frank Armstrong, one of the original heroes of the famous 8th Air Force, is the perfect guy for this group. I've never seen such an inspired gang of airmen!

BOB HOPE

What ships those B-29's are! They look like Flying Fortresses that ate their spinach. The other day one of them was circling the field here at Colorado Springs when a very confusing situation came up. They discovered that its tail was still grounded in Albuquerque!

His decorations, the Distinguished Conduct Medal and Military Medal, were won in the First Great War, in which he served with the 2nd Canadian Infantry Battalion.

Several Factors

Dominion Vote May Be Delayed Until June 16th

By CHESTER BLOOM
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Jan. 30—Ending the multitudinous guessing over the Grey North by-election by announcing that voting would be held next Monday in that constituency, Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King yesterday provided another guessing contest for the political forecasters—the date of the general election.

Mr. King's official announcement said "A general election campaign will be called before April 17."

But "called" doesn't necessarily mean "held." Since 60 days must elapse between issuance of the writs and the election, "calling" of the general election might be postponed as late as April 16, thereby putting off election day until June 16, and still be within the meaning of the prime minister's language.

PROBABLE PERIOD

The guessing now is for that later rather than the earlier date—sometime immediately after spring planting which would put the general

British Advance Nears Mandalay

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

KANDY, Ceylon, Jan. 30—(BUP)—Japanese troops evacuated the village of Kyaukse, nine miles northwest of Sagaing and only 12 miles west of Mandalay, a Southeast Asia communique said today.

The Japanese withdrew after British troops had set fire to the village in the closest penetration yet to Mandalay.

The communique reported that Lt.-Gen. Sir W. J. Slim's 14th Army troops, with heavy air support, captured the main Japanese positions on the Irrawaddy, just east of Kabwet, 20 miles northeast of Shwebo.

American troops of the Mars task force continued mopping up the area south of the newly-opened Ledo-Burma road and were reported to have inflicted heavy casualties on the Japanese near Hosi.

Mercury Reaches 19 Below Zero

Edmonton, with a temperature of 19 below zero overnight Monday, was fourth coldest spot on the prairies. Coldest northwestern centre was Port Churchill, Manitoba, where the mercury dipped to 38 degrees below zero.

Edmonton's forecast for today is "Clear and continued cold." At 8:30 a.m. Tuesday, temperature at the local meteorological office was 15 degrees below zero. The estimated high temperature for Tuesday is 10 degrees above.

After a light fog reported earlier a "very light" fall of snow was recorded here at 8 a.m.

DING-DONG DADDY OF THE CAR BARNS AT END OF LINE

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Romantic, pudgy Francis H. Van Wie who, by his own count, has had 12 wives, pleaded innocent yesterday to two bigamy complaints.

The 58-year-old street car conductor (the Ding-Dong Daddy of the D-line, they call him at the car barns) seemed bewildered by the crowd in the court room.

"Is this the famous Van Wie case?" inquired Judge Leo Cunningham as the case was called. "Yes, Your Honor," District Attorney Edmund Brown replied.

"Has he reached the end of the line?" the court pursued.

"I think the honeymoon is over, Your Honor," the prosecutor answered.

Mary Josephine Van Wie, and Evelyn Brown Van Wie, who declare they are wives No. 11 and No. 12, respectively, were in court yesterday for the street car man's appearance, and then filed annulment proceedings. Myrtle Deering Van Wie, listing herself as wife No. 8, also looked in on the hearing.

Judge Cunningham reduced bail from $2,500 to $1,000 on the bigamy charges. "He seems like a kindly and sentimental soul." Judge Cunningham said of Van Wie after talking with him at the conclusion of hearing.

Make Bid to Smash Capital's Defences

By ROBERT MUSEL
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, Jan. 30.—(BUP)—Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov exploded a redoubled offensive on a broad front 90 to 100 miles from Berlin today in a bid to overwhelm the defences of the threatened German capital with one great onslaught.

A Berlin broadcast admitting the Soviet crossing of the Obra said armored spearheads approached the Zullichau-Schweibus-Meseritz line, 82 miles east of Berlin and 13 inside Germany.

Moscow dispatches said Zhukov's massed tanks and troops had crashed through the Obra river line, last natural barrier before the Oder, and were sweeping westward toward Frankfurt and Stettin.

Nazi broadcasts reported that powerful Russian forces had struck out on a 42-mile front between Driesen and Neu Bentschen in the border area of Germany due east of Berlin in a plunge pointed at Kustrin, on the Oder 41 miles northeast of the capital.

GREAT GAMBLE

Soviet and Nazi reports made it evident that Zhukov was throwing his blue chips into the game of war for the highest stake—Berlin. Obviously he had the situation well enough in hand after his sweep across the Polish plains from the Vistula to gamble for the enemy's capital before the groggy Nazis had a chance to rally for its defence.

German descriptions indicated the massive weight Zhukov was throwing into his plunge.

The Nazi designation of the immediate Soviet objective as Kustrin, at the confluence of the Oder and Warthe, 17 miles northeast of Frankfurt, suggested that Zhukov's assault forces might have broken through the outlying perimeter of Berlin's defences for a quick grab

Prorogation Will Be Quiet Affair

OTTAWA, Jan. 30.—(CP)—Shorn of peacetime pomp and pageantry, the prorogation of parliament tomorrow will be a quiet affair.

In peacetime a cavalcade in trappings accompanied the Governor-General to the parliament buildings.

But following the wartime custom the speech will be read by Chief Justice Rinfret, deputy governor-general. The jurist will be met at the door of the senate at 12:45 p.m. MDT, by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, who will follow him to the senate chamber.

The House of Commons—with only a handful of members in attendance—will assemble at 2 p.m. and go to the Senate to hear the speech. After the speech the members will wait until the Governor-General's secretary, Sir Shuldham Redfern, has handed copies of the speech to house leaders and the clerk of the Senate, Clare Moyer, has announced prorogation.

Favor Promotion Of Col. Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Promotion of Col. Elliott Roosevelt to brigadier general was approved unanimously today by the Senate military committee. The nomination next goes to the Senate floor, probably Thursday, for a vote on confirmation.

Hitler to Speak

LONDON, Jan. 30.—(BUP)—The Berlin radio said that Adolf Hitler would speak from his headquarters this afternoon on the occasion of the anniversary of his rise to power.

Officials Say:

Large School Unit Formed North Alberta

Formation of a new enlarged school division, to include the present Sturgeon Lake school district, was announced by officials in Edmonton Tuesday. The new division will include 13 school districts.

Robert Mehlum, Debolt, will be secretary pro-tem of the new division, which is to be called East Smoky Lake School Division No. 54.

Rural public school districts to be incorporated in the division include Calais, Edson Trail, East Smoky, Ridge Valley, Sturgeon Heights, Darwin, Mountain Springs, Clarkson Valley, Smoky Valley, Cornwall, Simonette, Ravenna and Sturgeon Lake.

THREE SUBDIVISIONS

Three subdivisions will be created in the new division, two with five former districts incorporated, and one with the remaining taree.

Nominations for offices of subdivisional trustees were scheduled to close at 5 p.m. Tuesday at Debolt. If an election is necessary, it will be held in schoolhouses in the subdivision concerned at 2 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 17.

New board of the enlarged division will hold its organization meeting Wednesday, Feb. 21, in Debolt Community Hall. The new set-up comes into effect Feb. 19, after which date the enlarged division formally "takes over" from the individual trustee boards.

Emergency State Declared in N.Y.

ALBANY, N.Y., Jan. 30.—(BUP)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey today proclaimed a state of emergency throughout New York because of food and coal shortages.

DEWEY

The governor mobilized all state departments, including the state guard and civilian protection workers, to assist alleviating the serious condition throughout the state.

Dewey appointed Charles H. Sells, state superintendent of public works, as emergency director of transportation and supplies.

The governor said transportation tie-ups, snow congestion, shortages of dairy and poultry feed, and the impairment of food and coal shipments caused him to act.

Two Uncertainties

King Says Federal Election Will Be Called by April 17

By FRANK FLAHERTY

OTTAWA, Jan. 30.—(CP)—A federal election will be called before April 17, when the life of parliament expires, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said last night in a statement in which he indicated the Feb. 5 Grey North by-election will go on as scheduled.

However, his 200-word statement, addressed to electors of the Ontario riding, left two big uncertainties to be clarified before the federal political situation assumes normal stability.

They are: 1, whether a sixth session of the present parliament will be held; 2, the date of the forthcoming general election.

FINAL MESSAGE

In his statement, his third and what is believed to be his final message to the Grey North electors prior to the voting in which Defence Minister McNaughton is a candidate, he said: "A general election will be called before April 17."

That is the date upon which the five-year term of the 19th parliament ends. No session could be held after April 17 but between erative Marketing Association, Ltd. known as the Dairy Pool, with head offices in Saskatoon, and the Saskatchewan Co-Operative Creamery Association, Ltd., with head offices in Regina.

W. G. Carruthers, manager of the Purity Dairy, Regina, took the stand to answer questions on the independents' brief.

E. T. Parker, commission counsel, asked Mr. Carruthers to give the source of information in the brief on the Dairy Pool operations.

"The source is confidential but I can give it to the commission in confidence," said Mr. Carruthers.

"The commission is here, and its sittings across Canada are public," said Mr. Justice Errol McDougall of Montreal, chairman.

Mr. Grosch asked if a representative of the co-operative companies might be subpoenaed to verify the information of their operations contained in the independents' brief.

ACTION IS DELAYED

Mr. Justice McDougall said that arrangements could be made, but later it decided to wait until representatives of co-operatives appeared before the commission in connection with their own briefs and see if the desired confirmation could be obtained from them.

The commission opened its Regina hearings yesterday morning with the presentation of a brief by the Saskatchewan government co-operation department outlining the growth of co-operatives in Saskatchewan and legislation covering them.

Some 35 briefs are expected to be presented in Regina, where the commission will remain until Feb. 1.

Questioning A. H. Turner, director of research, who presented the Saskatchewan government co-operation department brief, Mr. Grosch said it was accepted that in a co-operative, control must rest with the producer and consumer, or it was not a "true" co-operative. A co-operative had to have producer or consumer members.

Mr. Turner agreed with the definition.

Mr. Grosch said the Saskatchewan Co-operative Creamery Association, Ltd., had no shareholders, patrons or an elected board of directors. It was managed by a board named by the lieutenant-governor-in-council. The "Co-operative" part of its name should be struck out.

Mr. Turner said the creamery had been in receivership and now was returning to a regular basis of operations.

NO SHAREHOLDERS

"It still has no patrons, no shareholders, no directors; yet it claims exemption from taxation as a co-operative," said Mr. Grosch.

Mr. Turner said the creamery was under a government board, and thus operated under special legislation.

"They trade on their name before the public," said Mr. Grosch.

Mr. Turner said there had been no prosecutions under a section of a provincial act which restricted the use of the word "co-operative" in a company name to those incorporated under provincial or federal legislation authorizing its use.

In presenting the independents' brief, Mr. Grosch said that the Saskatchewan Co-operative Creameries, Ltd., had encountered financial difficulties which culminated in 1931 when shareholders were "wiped out" with a loss of $1,392,378. The provincial government paid a bank $592,203 under a guarantee and this sum eventually was written off. A receiver carried on the business with government assistance and in 1938 the properties were turned over to the Saskatchewan Co-operative Creameries Association, Ltd. They were valued at $1,511,505 and the association agreed to pay off that amount over 20 years.

COST $1,731,756

The brief said that support given to the co-operative creameries by the government cost the taxpayers $1,731,756 while the shareholders lost $1,392,378. "So called" dairy co-operatives in Saskatchewan were "co-operative in name only."

"In November 1944, the Provincial Rural Municipalities Act was amended, to exempt all municipal taxes on community halls owned and operated by a co-operative, Mr. Grosch said in examining Mr. Turner. "Another discrimination against privately-owned companies," he added.

"That's not the proper way to examine a witness," said Mr. Parker.

Mr. Justice McDougall said the commission's province did not extend to municipal taxation.

Mr. Grosch said that tax exemptions had created discrimination against those not exempt. These exemptions now had reached the municipal level and private operations were being "driven into bankruptcy."

CLAIM DISCRIMINATION

Income and excess profits tax exemptions granted dairy co-operatives represent discrimination in favor of co-operatives and against companies and persons not exempt, said the brief.

The brief said that when the companies began processing products received from farmers, or when they added new ingredients or altered the inherent nature of the article, they were not entitled to exemption.

Belief Unshaken By War

Provider of Plenty, Hitler Still a God To Many Hausfraus

By MARGARET ECKER

VUGHT, Holland, Jan. 30.—(CP)—Hitler is still a God to the German Hausfrau. Because he put potatoes in her pot, clothes on her back and shoes on her children's feet and because she and her man have been more prosperous under Hitler than they can remember being before, she feels it her duty to her husband and babies to fight to maintain a regime that brought her family security.

There are several thousand of these women with their husbands and children interned in Vught camp to which they were moved when the Allied lines swept over their homes. The things they want out of life, you find out when you talk to them, are the things Canadian or American housewives want.

The dangerous fact is that they think Hitler is the one to give them those things, and even war hasn't shaken their belief.

The brown-haired woman in her middle 30's was probably like women all over Germany. She was dressed neatly and in good taste.

IN PRISON HOSPITAL

She was in the prison hospital caring for her four-year-old daughter, who was rosy cheeked and good-humored despite a minor sickness. The child was prettily dressed, obviously she had had the best food and care a youngster can have.

The little girl's father is a soldier, fighting against the Allies somewhere along the western front, her grandfather is a soldier too, an administering officer of a German prisoner of war camp.

He had told her, the woman said, that Allied prisoners of war were well and fairly treated.

Like most of the Germans at Vught, the woman denied that she or her husband were Nazis, but she said that sometimes they had been forced to go as far as 50 miles to attend political meetings.

HITLER ANOTHER MATTER

Hitler was another matter.

"He ended unemployment," she said. "He improved the food, so my family were healthier and happier. Even during the war we have had enough good food. Only fats were scarce sometimes."

And so she went on telling how Hitler had brought prosperity to her family and all German families.

She lost a bit of her friendliness, however, when I asked her if she couldn't thank Hitler too, for the war—for taking her husband away and putting him in danger.

"It wasn't Hitler, it was the Nazi party," she said. "It was the party and the SS that did all the cruel things. The fuehrer was always against war and cruelty."

SOUGHT "FRIENDSHIP"

Then she realized she had allowed her anger to show and she became friendly again. "Hitler always wanted to be friends with the English, with the Americans, and especially with Canadians," she told me.

She said she hoped Germany won the war, but added like many do, that she doesn't believe it is possible.

"But the only thing I want now is to go home, to have my man come home again," she said.

"I'm sick of hearing about politics. I hope any party that promotes war is no more when this is over."

Aircraft Repair Wins $19,160 Suit

CALGARY, Jan. 30.—(CP)—J. J. Ryan of New York, acting director of civilian defence of Alaska, was ordered to pay $19,160 for repair to a large Beechcraft airplane in a judgment handed down in Alberta Supreme Court here Monday by Mr. Justice S. J. Shepherd.

Ryan refused payment for a three-month repair job completed in June, 1942, by Aircraft Repair Limited, Edmonton, for virtual rebuilding of the plane which Justice Shepherd said was turned into "a better aircraft than when it came from the factory."

The judgment pointed out while charges appeared excessive work on the aircraft had to be done largely by hand instead of by factory methods.

Five British Brides Are on Way Here

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Frank Sinatra has been ordered by his local draft board to report for re-examination and possible induction into the U.S. armed forces, Ira W. Caldwell, chairman of Draft Board 19 here, said last night. Sinatra was last examined on Dec. 9, 1943, when a punctured eardrum landed him in the 4-F classification.

Soldier Vote Ballot Count Is Under Way

Counting of ballots cast between Jan. 8 and 20 by Alberta servicemen stationed overseas and in other parts of Canada, began in Calgary and London Tuesday. Results are expected to be made known by the coming week-end.

Votes cast overseas are being counted in London under supervision of James Thomson, chief returning officer for the soldier vote. Counting being conducted in Calgary is under supervision of A. V. Van Buren and takes in ballots cast in the western hemisphere, including Bermuda, Newfoundland, the United States and various Canadian centres.

TO SEND RETURNS

The London and Calgary counting officials will forward returns to Edmonton, where they will be compiled by Robert A. Andison, chief electoral officer for the province. Mr. Andison will announce results and declare members elected.

Three servicemen are to be elected to sit in the Legislature, one from each of the three branches of the armed forces. They are expected to arrive in Edmonton in time to take part in opening ceremonies connected with opening of the Legislature, which takes place Feb. 22.

Yanks Capture San Fernando On Luzon Isle

By C. YATES McDANIEL

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ADVANCE COMMAND, Jan. 30.—(AP)—American troops advanced toward both capitals of the Philippines Sunday, capturing San Fernando, within 34 airline miles of Manila, and high ground dominating a road junction within 14 miles of the summer capital of Baguio, as enemy casualties mounted past 25,000.

American casualties now total 4,254, including 1,017 killed.

The 14th army corps of Maj.-Gen. Oscar W. Griswold seized San Fernando, capital of Pampanga province, in a push nine miles south of Angeles, then sent patrols far ahead where the central Luzon plain narrows between two swamplands. Troops at San Fernando are 90 miles south of Lingayen Gulf where they landed Jan. 9.

RIDGES CAPTURED

The 1st Corps of Maj.-Gen. Innis P. Swift took ridges overlooking Camp One near fallen Rosario and also capped a bloody fight 15 miles to the southeast at San Manuel by annihilating Japanese in hand-to-hand fighting. Around San Manuel, 49 destroyed enemy tanks and 789 Nipponese bodies have been counted.

San Fernando, Luzon's second city, on the railroad to Manila and junction point for roads to Manila and Bataan, was left virtually intact. Several hundred Japanese fled hurriedly at daybreak Sunday toward Bataan.

On the extreme east side of Pangasinan province, which was invaded at Lingayen Gulf, 1st Corps elements obtained a wedge in Highway 8 which skirts foothills of the Sierra Madre range as it leads to Manila.

The infantrymen captured the highway town of San Quintin, eight miles east of Santa Maria. It is from Highway 8 that two roads of retreat for the Japanese lead into the Cagayan valley.

In Tarlac province, south of Pangasinan, other troops won control of the town of Licab, 12 miles northeast of the provincial capital of Tarlac.

Lamp Post Knocked Into Store Window

An electric light standard, knocked from its base on 101A avenue shortly before noon Tuesday, when struck by a backing truck, crashed through a plate glass window of a store and smashed into some showcases inside the building, according to city police.

Driver of the truck, J. W. Smith, 9819 104 street, stated he was backing into the loading door in the northeast corner of the store, when the vehicle struck the lamp post, causing it to go through the window.

ward from the threatened Ruhr, in progress most of last week, practically ceased.

BOMB RAIL CENTRES

Allied air forces swooped over lines of withdrawal and inflicted heavy damage on the railway centres of Munster, Paderborn, Detmund, Hamm and Cologne. Flights were in the worst possible weather.

The Canadian army is deployed in the extreme north of the western front along the Maas (Meuse) river and within six miles of Keve, terminus of the Siegfried line. It has been virtually inactive since capturing Antwerp, well rested and refitted.

Should it strike the Ijssel Meer, it would cut off such cities as Rotterdam, Amsterdam, The Hague, Haarlem and Utrecht.

The Germans for several days have been talking of the imminence of a Canadian attack, and indeed of a new general offensive in the west.

SNOWING AND COLD

Snow still was falling in 11-degree cold on the western front this morning.

Despite the terrific handicap of waist-deep drifts, the Allies slowly were turning to the offensive.

Allied air forces hurled their destructive bomb weight into the balance yesterday with nearly 4,000 sorties. The last 10 days of roadside slaughter have accounted for 5,000 vehicles destroyed and 4,500 damaged, 250 tanks and armored vehicles ruined, and approximately 1,500 rail cars destroyed and 2,000 damaged. Some 1,261 were disabled in the St. Vith area alone yesterday.

Added to all that destruction was the paralyzing effect of yesterday's mighty air blows at 32 railyards along key lines back from the Rhine toward the eastern front.

TWO BREAK-THROUGHS

The 3rd Army broke the German Our river frontier defence at two places just north of Luxembourg. The troops waded icy water to their waists in crossing near Oberhausen and Peterskirche, 13 miles southwest of the Siegfried pivot of Prum. Oberhausen fell.

The 3rd Army was close to or across the German frontier all the way from Saarlautern to Oberhausen.

To the north, the United States 1st Army advanced nearly two miles early today in the darkness fighting onto Murrange, 15 miles northwest of Prum. Opposition was relatively light; the Germans were beating their way back into the Siegfried line. The 1st took 925 prisoners yesterday and expected a large total today.

The United States 7th Army in Alsace was snowbound for the third day. At the northern end of the Colmar pocket south of Strasbourg, American troops fighting under French command wedged within a half-mile of the northeast outskirts of Colmar.

The French were closing around Cernay from three sides at the south end of the Colmar pocket. Fifty Germans have been destroyed in 10 days by the French Atone.

A dispatch from Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st army group headquarters said it was probably the German 6th panzer army, mauled in the retreat from the Ardennes, had been moved toward the Russian front.

The British 2nd Army, strung between Roermond and Geilenkirchen and flanking the Canadians on the south, captured Paarlo on the Roer river and heavily shelled nearby Vlodrop, 28 miles from Dusseldorf and 15 from Munchen Gladbach.

The same dispatch said that possibly the Germans were removing from Holland the last remaining forces brought there to join troops used in the Ardennes in a grand squeeze on Antwerp.

Report Churchill, Stalin, F.D.R. Plan Joint Appeal to Germans

PARIS, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Reports that Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin would issue a joint appeal to the Germans to throw off the Nazi yoke and lay down their arms took a fresh impetus today as the Allies showered German lines with leaflets explaining "unconditional surrender."

Pamphlets told the German troops that unconditional surrender "would not mean that Germans who surrendered would be at the mercy of the victorious side."

The pamphlets said that the troops who capitulated would "be under the protection of the Geneva convention and would be treated with fairness.

"That also means that individual Germans who had nothing to do with crimes committed by the war criminals will not be taken to account for those crimes."

This was the first direct attempt noticed in Allied propaganda in recent months to drive a wedge between the German rulers and the mass of the German people.

At Regina Hearing

Tax Equality Between Co-Ops, Private Businesses Is Urged

REGINA, Jan. 30.—(CP)—Major growth of Co-Operatives had taken place in Saskatchewan when they had no special benefits compared with other businesses, said H. T. Thomson in presenting a Regina Board of Trade brief to the Royal Commission on Taxation of Co-Operatives today.

No income tax had been payable in these days of early growth, but now the Co-Operatives were exempt and other businesses paid income and excess profits taxes.

The Board of Trade felt there should be equality of taxation, with every business making a profit bearing a fair share of the tax burden.

Nine members of the Board of Trade represented Co-Operatives and there were 21 from Co-Operatives in the young men's section.

FAVORS EQUALITY

Mr. Thomson also presented a brief of the Western Retail Lumbermen's Association, placing that organization on record in favor of equality of taxation.

W. L. McQuarrie of Saskatoon, secretary - manager, presented a brief of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, Saskatchewan branch.

Questioned by E. T. Parker, commission counsel, Mr. McQuarrie said the brief had been checked by five association officers. He said membership was at least 1,900.

The association had nothing but "the best of goodwill towards the co-operative movement" but asked for "a fair field, with no favors to anyone." Merchants said they could not continue to pay income and excess profits taxes and stay in business while the co-operative stores in opposition paid neither.

HEAVY HANDICAP

"We are heavily handicapped in this race for survival due to the fact that by the law under which co-operatives operate the dice have been loaded against the independent retail merchant as compared with the co-operatives," said the brief.

"Thus, on account of this inequity, the very future of the retail trade in this province is imperilled."

If the tax exemptions for co-operatives were continued it could only be a matter of time until private business in Saskatchewan had to "give up the ghost."

Japanese Fortify Coast of China

CHUNGKING, Jan. 30.—(AP)—A Tokyo dispatch claimed the Japanese, developing the Southeastern China coast into a "continental fortress," had occupied the entire Kwangtung province coast nearest the Philippines, and were hastily throwing up fortifications that would foil any invasion. Chinese reports said the Japanese on Friday pressed to within six miles of Fungshun, 45 miles northwest of Swatow.

Cut Coal Ration

LONDON, Jan. 30.—(CP)—Londoners, experiencing one of the coldest winters in a century, were told last night they would have to get along on one-quarter of a ton of coal, and possibly less, for each family during February. The ministry of fuel said those with as much as 500 pounds of coal on hand at the beginning of the month would get no more.

No Early Easing Of Gas Shortage

By CHESTER BLOOM

Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Jan. 30—Even following collapse of organized resistance in Germany, it will be many months before the tight gasoline supply in Canada can be ameliorated, according to information procured this morning from the department of munitions and supply. Reason will be huge supplies of gasoline required for re-establishing transport in the devastated European nations.

Not only due to the fighting in Germany but also because of months of bombing German supply lines in France, Belgium, Holland, Italy, Austria, Hungary and the Balkans, railway transport is almost at a standstill. Locomotives and freight cars by the thousands have been blasted, junction points and transfer yards blown up, and worst of all, the big railway bridges knocked down.

Nearly all food and other freight now has to be moved by trucks and this supply situation will be accentuated immediately following the collapse of the Nazi military machine. Even then, the military authorities anticipate that it will require months to root out nests of Nazi guerillas and underground fanatics. A great deal of bombing of their hideouts will have to be done, requiring much aviation gasoline.

Report Big Three Meeting Started

LONDON, Jan. 30.—(CP)—German and Swiss broadcasts today said a meeting of the Big Three was already underway or just about to begin.

London observers speculated whether President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill would meet prior to their conference with Marshal Stalin as they did at Cairo in 1943.

Mr. Churchill's movements naturally are guarded by security and censorship but it was noted he did not appear in the House of Commons this morning.

State Secretary Stettinius, War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes and other U.S. officials were reported to have left Washington. The general supposition in London was that they were en route to England, continental Europe or some point farther east.

With only mass speculation for a basis it seemed that a meeting of the Big Three might be held somewhere in the east. Most quarters still favored somewhere in Russia as the site although some believed it might be in Italy.

Firemen Did All Possible to Save Messenger Boy

TORONTO Jan. 30.—(CP)—A coroner's jury investigating the death of Norman Kajioka, 14-year-old Japanese messenger boy, last night said the fire department had done everything possible to rescue the boy. Kajioka was trapped in the basement of a downtown drug store Jan. 3 when flames enveloped the building. He died of carbon monoxide poisoning as a result of the fire.

Nazis Lost 3,762 Aircraft in Italy

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC, Jan. 30.—(CP)—The German air force was literally driven from the skies over Italy during 1944, suffering defeat on the same scale as it did over France and Belgium during and following the invasion of western Europe. Aircraft destroyed totalled 3,762 with 899 probably shot down and 1,266 damaged.

Winnipeg was two above.

Reds Explode New Offensive At Nazi Capital

at the river city which is the last of any size before Berlin on the trunk railway from Danzig.

CROSS IN STRENGTH

Driesen and Neu Bentschen, the outer limits of Zhukov's intensified push as reported by Berlin, are 42 miles apart and a few miles inside Germany from the northwestern and southwestern arcs of Poland's westernmost bulge.

The German reports indicated that Zhukov's First White Russian Army had crossed the border in great strength, and Moscow dispatches said that after breaking through the line of the Obra his armor and mobile infantry were rolling on toward Frankfurt.

"In the Obra sector and north of the Netze river at Driesen the enemy attacked with strong forces in the westerly direction," the German high command said. "Heavy fighting is in progress."

UNCHECKED DRIVE

The thrust across the Obra, which winds 75 to 100 miles east of Berlin, carried the Soviets into the capital's home province of Brandenburg while other Russian columns were rolling unchecked across Pomerania within 90 miles northeast of the city.

Moscow did not identify immediately the point at which the Soviets crossed the Obra, but said they were plunging on to the west toward Frankfurt-on-Oder, 38 miles east-southeast of Berlin.

The Russian Army organ Red Star said staff officers of Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian Army had been issued with maps of the Berlin region, while his tanks and trucks rumbling west were emblazoned with the slogan, "On to Berlin."

German reinforcements of infantry, tanks and mobile guns were streaming east across the centre of Germany for the impending battle of Berlin, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia reported, but there remained a question whether they would arrive in time or in sufficient strength to save the capital.

SMASH 6 DIVISIONS

Moscow said Zhukov's tanks and infantry smashed two panzer and four infantry divisions on the east bank of the Obra. The Germans counter-attacked strongly, but were thrown back in retreat.

Only yesterday, the First White Russian Army was drawn up in force along a 35-mile front only two to six miles from the Brandenburg frontier. The Moscow reports indicated they may have crossed the border along the entire front.

Zhukov's northern wing swept 12 to 14 miles across the Pomeranian border on a 29-mile front northeast of Berlin yesterday and at one point was within 55 miles of the great Baltic port of Stettin, whose fall would slice off the northeastern tip of Germany.

The Soviets gained as much as 31 miles in 24 hours in their breakthrough into Pomerania.

STOCKHOLM RUMORS

Stockholm relayed rumors that Soviet spearheads had infiltrated the Nazi lines to within 50 miles of Berlin and that paratroops were operating between the Oder and the capital.

Stockholm also reported that Berliners for the first time could see the red cloud of burning villages fired by Soviet guns or Nazi demolition squads in the east. Inhabitants of the capital streamed into the streets to watch the spreading glare, it was said.

Far to the southeast, Berlin conceded, Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian Army has slashed five to six miles across the Oder River in the vicinity of Steinau, 31 miles northwest of Breslau and 138 miles from Berlin.

Still other Russian forces battled into the streets of the encircled Polish fortress city of Poznan and drove to within two miles of Konigsberg, now threequarters encircled.

First Arrests Made in Death Of Racketeer

TORONTO, Jan. 30—(CP)—First arrests were made yesterday in connection with the gangland slaying of Louis Wernick, Toronto racketeer whose bullet-riddled and frozen body was found in a snowbank last Friday. Arrested on nominal charges of vagrancy were two women, said by police to have been frequently in company of Wernick.

One of the women, a brunette who said she was 20 years old, said her home is in Florida, while the other, a 17-year-old titian-haired girl, is from Prince Edward Island. Bail was set at $300 and had not been arranged late last night.

Police, who have questioned 275 persons and combed reputed underworld haunts for four days, said they have found little of a "substantial nature" to work on. "It will be a long, hard haul if we get anywhere at all," said one of the squad of detectives assigned to 24-hour-a-day duty on the case.

Police search for the gunman who "rubbed out" Wernick has led police to an underworld explanation of the disappearance last April 23 of Rocco Perri of Hamilton.

BELIEVED SLAIN

Perri, who styled himself "king of the bootleggers" was associated with Wernick in a rum-running syndicate in the late 1920's. Police expressed the belief Perri was slain. They said Wernick told a friend last August he had obtained reliable information that Perri "is in a barrel of cement at the bottom of Hamilton Bay."

Police have been unable to find any trace of money, bonds or stocks Wernick is supposed to have had on him at the time of his disappearance Jan. 15. Officials intimated last night that if shreds of information in their possession can be developed, some light might be thrown on the disappearance of more than $50,000 in victory bonds stolen from Toronto homes.

Information reaching police sources said that housebreakers unable to dispose of "hot" war bonds, turned them over to one of the Wernick rackets.

LIQUOR IS FOUND

Delving further into the Montreal-Toronto illicit liquor traffic has led to discovery of several large consignments of Quebec liquor that fell into the hands of different police forces in Ontario. One of the largest hauls of contraband whiskey was made when a car loaded with liquor was seized at Cornwall last autumn. Other seizures have been made in and around Toronto.

election day probably between the last week of May and the middle of June.

On the other hand, the general election could be "called" immediately after the Grey North by-election on February 5, thereby putting election day in early April. Perhaps the course of the war may have some effect on the fixing of the date.

The earlier the total collapse of Germany, the earlier the election date may be a safe guess. Assembly of parliament on January 31, next Wednesday, will be a mere formality. The Speech from the Throne will be read and the house immediately prorogued.

Depending on the outcome of the Grey North by-election may be the question of a final session of this parliament. If General McNaughton wins, undoubtedly there will be a subsequent, final short session of the present parliament. Then dissolution and later fixing of the date of the general election. If General McNaughton is defeated, the chances are for no further session of the present parliament before the general election.

Punishment 'Far Down Line' Is Urged by Former Member Of War Crimes Commission

Herbert C. Pell, former United States member of the United Nations War Crimes Commission, herein sets down his views on the widely-discussed question of punishment for German war lords and the German nation. The state department recently announced that Mr. Pell would not return to London because an appropriation providing for salary and expenses of the American staff had failed. Mr. Pell, however, asserted the reason was disapproval of his insistance that Nazis be brought to trial for atrocities against their own Jewish citizens as well as the war crimes against citizens of other countries. The state department Monday announced it had renewed its request for a special appropriation to provide full American participation in the work of the commission, but would not say whether it planned to return Mr. Pell to the commission if the funds are obtained.—EDITOR.

By HERBERT C. PELL
Written for The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—I believe that everything that is done by us who are not in the armed forces will be ultimately judged by one standard and by one standard only—have we contributed toward preventing a third world war which would end civilization?

The conviction and punishment of those responsible for the suffering of this war is not a matter of revenge but of justice. The persecution of minorities is an easy and from ancient time regularly used means of establishing tyrannical governments which inevitably become belligerent sooner or later. . .

The things that have happened in the last four years will live for a long time in the memory of all people and so will the policy of the victors.

We are told to forgive those who have injured us and to turn the other cheek, but it must be remembered that we have not been told to forgive injustice to others or to turn the cheek of somebody else . . .

EXTENSIVE PUNISHMENT

I believe that the punishment should be extended far down the line. It will not do merely to make a handful of martyrs. The Gestapo, which is a volunteer organization which nobody is forced to join should be punished.

All those in any way guilty of outrages should be punished so that in the future anyone in any country tempted to join such an organization will feel that he is putting a rope around his neck. The fear of punishment will not prevent men from taking the position of leaders. There will always be people ready to swap life for glory, but it may make their recruiting more difficult.

If this course involves some, or many cases of personal injustice, it must involve them. It is better than half-a-dozen innocent German sergeants should hang today than that millions of equally innocent people should suffer in 25 years . .

DIVERGENT VIEWS THREATENING WORK

LONDON, Jan. 30. — (CP) — Divergent views among members of the United Nations War Crimes Commission and their own government's on treatment of German war criminals appeared yesterday to be threatening the organization's work. Responsible quarters hinted that some members of the commission were not seeing eye-to-eye with their own governments, and cited dismissal of Herbert Claiborne Pell and resignation of Britain's representative, Sir Cecil Hurst, as substantiation of their view.

The main controversy resulting from Mr. Pell's dismissal appeared to be over whether the Nazis should be made to pay for persecutions in their own country.

SHOULD BE PUNISHED

Mr. Pell contended such persecutions were "crimes against humanity and should be punished" although International law technically holds that what a government does to its own nationals is its own affair.

Although official quarters said Sir Cecil resigned because of his health, diplomatic sources understood he broke with the foreign office on the problem of bringing Hitler to trial. He was understood in favor of dealing heavily with Hitler.

Most observers believed the War Crimes Commission would become a more or less inactive organization unless a definite policy could be agreed upon.

Although the commission is not responsible for the trial of war criminals, its duty is to list the criminals and their crimes.

F.D.R. Has Definite "Big 3" Program

By JON KIMCHE

LONDON, Jan. 30—(Reuters)—President Roosevelt will go to the big three conference with a definite program which, in some respects, will differ markedly from the arrangements made to date by both Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill. This is the view expressed in London political circles yesterday as a result of the brief stay of Harry Hopkins, former lease-lend administrator and advisor to Mr. Roosevelt.

It is claimed that the views expressed by Mr. Hopkins leave no doubt that Mr. Roosevelt will veto any proposals for the establishment in Europe of what is called totalitarian governments of either the right or the left.

This veto will be extended to apply to the present layout of the Lublin committee in Poland and also to that of Marshal Tito in Yugoslavia, while more information will be sought by the president about the nature of the governments in Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary.

Mr. Roosevelt, it is said in London, will also express dissatisfaction at the present state of affairs in Italy and Greece.

Federal Vote To Be Called By April 17th

now and April 17 a session could be held for the passage of the financial legislation necessary to enable the war effort and normal governmental services to be carried on in the new fiscal year which begins April 1.

Mr. King said he had hoped that Gen. McNaughton might have been returned unopposed at yesterday's nominations for the by-election. The nomination of two opposing candidates removed any doubt of the "determination of the opposition parties to obstruct the entry of the minister of national defence into the House of Commons."

FULL DISCUSSION

In announcing that a general election would be called before April 17, Mr. King said this would provide ample opportunity for discussion of every possible issue and added that a contest on general issues in Grey North "is therefore both unnecessary and unwarranted."

He said important matters would demand Gen. McNaughton's closest attention in the light of the fast-moving events in Europe.

He ended with an appeal to the electors "now that the opposition parties have made a political contest inevitable" to give Gen. McNaughton "every possible opportunity for the fullest service to Canada's Army overseas".

In political circles here the interpretation placed on Mr. King's statement and the general sequence of events was that if General McNaughton wins the by-election a short session of parliament will be held to terminate with the issue of writs for a general election.

If the minister is defeated the expectation is that there will be no session of parliament but the election will be called as soon as possible, which would be early in April.

As two months must elapse between the issue of writs and a general election Mr. King's statement that an election will be called before April 17 means that voting will take place before June 17.

Meantime, from political circles in the capital came indications the campaign in Grey North would step up to new heights of activity in the coming week.

The Canadian Press learned last night that John Bracken, Progressive Conservative national leader, will make four speeches in the constituency and left for there last night.

Wednesday afternoon Mr. Bracken, who has just returned from the fighting fronts overseas, will address public meeting in Owen Sound. The same night he will address party workers. Thursday night he will speak in Meaford and Saturday night in Clarkesburg.

GREY NORTH SAID FIGHTING RIDING

OTTAWA, Jan. 30—(CP)—Grey North riding is what politicians call a good fighting constituency, one in which no party can claim an assured victory on the basis of the record of previous elections.

Since confederation it has divided its favors fairly evenly between the Liberal and Conservative parties with 11 elections and by-elections being won by the Liberals and 10 by the Conservatives.

If the constituency votes according to form a large majority cannot be anticipated in the by-election on Feb. 5, in which the contenders are Defence Minister McNaughton, Liberal, Garfield Case, Progressive Conservative, and Air Vice-Marshal Earl Godfrey, CCF.

At the last general election W. P. Telford, Liberal candidate who resigned to open the seat for Gen McNaughton, in a three-cornered fight did not win a majority but polled 1,813 votes more than his Conservative opponent. Garfield Case, now running as a Progressive Conservative, polled 2,434 votes and in third place as a "National Liberal Progressive.'

BEST OF REPORTS ON REINFORCEMENTS

OWEN Sound, Ont., Jan. 30—(CP)—Defence Minister McNaughton told a political rally last night that the "best of reports have come from overseas upon the troops that arrived there recently as reinforcements.

Addressing the rally in his campaign as government candidate in the Grey North by-election Feb. 5 Gen. McNaughton said that the reinforcements which included 8,300 NRMA troops had been inspected and "found good."

He said he wished to give reassurances that the reinforcement program is up to date

TO REMAIN SO

"It is my business to see that it remains so and it will," he said.

"On my advice a certain method was chosen. There wasn't a move made I didn't know about and I take full responsibility. I am absolutely convinced that the method adopted was the only method by which reinforcements could be provided."

Some people were saying that he was in favor of the voluntary system only and others were saying that he had swung to the extreme of compulsion.

"I chose a middle course not as a compromise but because it was the only course that could provide reinforcements in time," he said.

He said that when he and Prime Minister Mackenzie King had appealed to the people to support the government efforts to obtain reinforcements through the voluntary method he had expected support. Such support would have been forthcoming if some people had not tried to make political capital out of the confusion.

"The appeal was not supported by some sections of the press and some sections of the people" he said. "The reason why this support was not given had nothing to do with reinforcements.

"They sought to destroy the government for their own selfish ends."

He was thankful that a great section of the people—organized labor—had seen through the situation and was standing four-square behind the government.

GODFREY RAPS GOVT. ON POST-WAR JOBS

BERKELEY, Ont., Jan. 30.—(CP)—The federal government is refusing to face the task of making sure that, there are jobs for returned service personnel and war workers after the war. Air Vice-Marshal A. E. Godfrey, CCF candidate in the Grey North by-election Feb. 5, said last night.

In a speech at a political rally here, Air Marshal Godfrey said that "more than 700,000 men and women discharged from the armed forces will be looking for jobs when the war ends."

"They will be looking for work at a time when over a million war workers are being laid off. This is our post-war problem number one. And the government refuses to face it."

OLD JOBS NO GOOD

"The returned man is to get his old job back, the Liberals say. How many will want the old job back? I know lads in the air force who were office boys or unskilled workers before they joined up. Now they are ferrying bombers across the Atlantic, or fighting the Nazis over Berlin. Will they be content with jobs as office boys when they return?"

"And what of the lads who never had a job? Thousands of our finest fighting men were in the ranks of the unemployed. What has the government to offer them? Unemployment once more? I am afraid that is the answer. The government refuses to face the problem of jobs, because it has no answer to that problem. The CCF has an answer, and it will see that jobs are provided."

"The CCF answer is that our war plants must be converted to full-scale peace production—not sold to big interests and closed down, as the Liberals plan. The great monopolies must be curbed and brought under public ownership to serve the people. Large-scale programs of housing, rural electrification and economic development must be undertaken. Only the CCF is prepared with plans to meet the cry for jobs."

SMEAR CAMPAIGN CHARGED BY CASE

MEAFORD, Ont., Jan. 30.—(CP)—Garfield Case, Progressive Conservative candidate in the Grey North by-election Feb. 5, last night accused the Liberal party of carrying on a smear campaign aimed at destroying him.

In a speech at a political rally here, Mr. Case said that Gen. McNaughton as government candidate was responsible for the advertising campaign being carried on by the Liberal party.

He referred to a two-page advertisement published in the Owen Sound Sun-Times Friday. The advertisement consisted of a letter that Mr. Case had written to Jack Willis, an Aurora, Ont., druggist, several months ago and outlining his views on manpower policy.

OPPOSES CONSCRIPTION

Mr. Case said in the letter that he was opposed to conscription as such but that he favored a system of selective service and full mobilization of resources.

He said he did not mind what was being said but he did mind the way it was being said. The ad had been presented in such a way as to make him appear as anti-conscriptionist and one who looked upon politics as a game.

He challenged Gen. McNaughton to publish the letter that "Mr. Willis wrote me and in which he gave me his opinion of Gen. McNaughton."

He said he believed "Gestapo methods" were used to get the letter from my friend Jack Willis."

"I understand that Mr. Willis has a lucrative government contract and they must have put pressure on him to obtain the letter. I do not think that my friend would do such a dastardly thing as release personal correspondence."

"If this thing continues the time is not far distant when no self-respecting citizen will offer himself for public office."

"I say to my friend Gen. McNaughton, apologize while there is time to prove yourself to be the big man people would like to think you are."

GREY NORTH VOTERS GET QUESTIONNAIRES

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Jan. 30.—(CP)—Arthur Moore, returning officer for the Grey North by-election of Feb. 5, in a statement yesterday appealed to the electors not to reply to a questionnaire sent them in the mails by a Toronto agency (Elliott, Haynes, Ltd.).

Mr. Moore's statement came after it was found that envelopes in which the questionnaires were to be returned to the agency were numbered by hand under the postage stamp. The number could be seen when the return envelopes were held up to a strong light.

INTENTIONS ASKED

The questionnaire asked the recipient to say whether he was going to vote and how he was going to vote, but warned that the questionnaire was not to be signed. The agency said the poll was for the use of the Canadian Poll of Public Opinion which would attempt to forecast the vote.

It was estimated that about 1,500 voters had received the questionnaires.

Mr. Moore said he did not know why the poll had been organized but it was his duty to protect the electors and parties and that he intends to "carry my investigation further." He said he had not consulted the crown attorney.

OFFICIAL EXPLAINS REASON FOR NUMBERS

TORONTO, Jan. 30—(CP)—Walter Elliott of Elliott-Haynes, Ltd., research agency, yesterday said the system of numbering envelopes in which questionnaires mailed to 1,500 voters in the Grey North federal by-election of Feb. 5 were to be returned was simply to obtain an accurate sample of opinion.

"Election officials are quite welcome to look over our system," said Mr. Elliott, commenting on a statement at Owen Sound by Returning Officer Arthur Moore who appealed to voters not to reply to the questionnaire.

Mr. Elliott said that the numbers were based on a four-digit code. The first showed the individual voter's occupation, the second the sex and the third and fourth the polling subdivision.

Several envelopes would have the same numbers, said Mr. Elliott, adding: "we aren't interested in how any one individual is going to vote. We are just interested in sampling a cross-section of opinion and the code is necessary to determine whether we have a cross-section."

BATTLED TANKS

L-Cpl. George Kawiuk, Calgary, was awarded the Military Medal for destroying a tank and all its crew and causing two other tanks to turn and retreat.

Gunner John Osinchuk, of Three Creeks, was awarded the Military Medal for gallantry immediately south of Favbocrg de Vaucelles on the night of July 25, 1944. The gun detachment with which he was serving was deployed to protect gun areas.

Between 11:30 and 11:45 p.m. a heavy and concentrated air attack was made on this area. The detachment engaged an aircraft seen by light of flares, and continued to engage it when the aircraft banked and dived low, strafing the gun and crew with machine gun fire.

Gnr. Osinchuk seeing that ammunition inside the pit was running low, left the shelter of the pit, and going outside, at great personal risk continued to pass ammunition to the crew until a container of anti-personnel bmobs was dropped. These burst in and around the pit, killing another crew member and wounding Gnr. Osinchuk, whose action, in the face of extremely heavy fire enabled the gun to continue in action until disabled by the bombs.

RAF Liberators Strike at Japs On Arakan Front

WITH ALLIED LAND FORCES IN SOUTHEAST ASIA, Jan. 30.—(Reuters)—RAF Liberators Sunday made their first appearance in strength in the Arakan battle and dropped 245 tons of bombs in 10 minutes less than half a mile ahead of the advancing Indian troops. Fighter pilots described the work of the big bombers which led the attack as the best pattern bombing they had ever seen. Men of the 15th Indian Corps have forced the Japs from one of two key features dominating the Arakan coastal road after a fierce fight, in the Kanraw sector, southeast of Akyab.

The Three Leaders

able. Always he seems to be the host, never the guest. In this photo he seems to be interested only in the Russian. He is bent on knowing and winning him. He has the same hard-willed strength of chin as the other two men, but the build of his head is finer. He is more variable, more high-strung, not only by race, but temperamentally.

Churchill, to the right of Roosevelt, has retained the look of an infant in his features. As he is a genius, there is nothing astonishing in finding also a child in him. Nevertheless, he is the only one of the three who shows a fierce look. He seems to have come to Teheran resolved not to be cheated, nor even pacified.

Of the three faces, Churchill's is the one that has passed through the greatest evolution. Looking at Stalin's and Roosevelt's juvenile pictures, you can easily foresee their faces at 60. It's much more difficult to recognize the Churchill of today in his photos at the age of 20.

The development of Churchill's mind has been far more interesting than that of his partners, and life has inscribed deeper signs of wear and tear in his features. He was a very handsome man in his youth, but hardly a trace of this can be seen today. Roosevelt was elegant and good looking in his youth—and he is now. Stalin has always had the same stubborn face he has today.

Let us review the obstacles these men had to overcome before they rose to those judgment seats in Teheran.

THREE BASIC QUALITIES

Churchill, born a gentleman, descendant of a famous British conqueror, is the son of an American woman, and through his blood may have acquired that trait of originality that the British condemn in the word indiscreet. Ten years ago, when I commented to a British friend on the mediocrity of Prime Minister Baldwin and on the talent of Churchill, he answered: "You are right, and that's why we prefer to have Baldwin as Prime Minister, whereas we will never accept Churchill!"

To understand Churchill, we must never forget the three qualities that have made him what he is. He is a soldier, a nobleman and a poet. How much he is an aristocrat I saw in an answer he gave me, after the First World War, when I asked him why the British were treating Lloyd George so badly after he had won the war for them. Though a political opponent of Lloyd George, Churchill at once answered: "You will never hear a word from me minimizing Lloyd George." At that time, most of the well-bred class in England spoke as badly of Churchill as they did of Lloyd George.

That Churchill began his career as a soldier, fighting in India, the Sudan and against the Boers in South Africa, should never be forgotten.

For many years, he tried to prevent this war by opposing the public opinion of his country in urging a strong rearmament of Britain against Germany. For ten years, he remained virtually the only prominent Englishman who warned his people of the coming war.

DRAMATIC MOMENT

Then the dramatic moment arrived when the politics of appeasement which he had always opposed brought England to the rim of destruction. In this climax, all eyes were suddenly turned to this man who had not been regarded as a successful leader in the first war, who was not popular, and even—having twice switched parties—had a tinge of adventure on his name. The British need a threat to their very existence before they give power to a genius. A man who can take the blunders of his predecessors and his political enemies onto his shoulders in a moment of great military catastrophe such as that at Dunkirk, must have heroic qualities in his character. The soldier and the nobleman in Churchill answered the call of his nation.

PLAYS HISTORICAL ROLE

But the poet, too, always remained alive in him—as an author, an historian, an orator. I believe that Churchill's power over men is due to his speeches. Not in the way Hitler won his followers. Hitler is an agitator, whose speeches are void and meaningless when read. Churchill is an artist whose oratory is as brilliant as his writings. He sometimes rewrites his speeches four and even six times.

As a soldier and poet, Churchill possesses some of the qualities of an actor. He plays a masterly role because he is constantly aware of the historical mission he is carrying out and because he compares his position to that of other great Englishmen of the past whose lives and works he has studied. When he wrote the life of Marlborough, he wrote his own would-be autobiography.

Churchill has the greatest knowledge among all the three leaders—a knowledge that enables him to write in a classical style, to use striking historical comparisons, and that gives him a constant awareness of the historical part he is called upon to fulfill.

In spite of his childlike features, he has some resemblance to Bismarck's massive structure. And like Bismarck, he was always interested in money. He speculated on the Exchange and lost, but gave up such things as soon as he became a Minister—a prudence not shown by all Britons who have entered the Government.

LOVES ENGLAND

Can we wonder that this last Elizabethan, whose imagination is afire with the grandeur and power of royal courts of the past, has remained a Tory and an imperialist? It is the price he demands for his merits in leading this war. He loves only England, and is fighting for the British Empire for which he went to war in his youth.

I hear he is ailing physically, and is kept going only by his indomitable will to victory and his determination to complete his mission as war leader. In judging such great men, one should not be influenced too much by one's own political opinion. For instance, while I believe Churchill's policies in Italy and Greece are destructive, I am nevertheless full of admiration for his personal courage.

President States U.S. Needs Wallace

NEW YORK, Jan. 30. — (AP) — President Roosevelt in a message last night said that "America, its people and its government, need Henry Wallace now more than ever before."

"I count on his aid, his wisdom and his courage in the difficult ways to the magnificent hopes we hold for a world worthy of his faith in the people and of the struggles of free people everywhere, which have so splendidly justified that faith," the president said.

The message was read by Bruce Blevin, editor of New Republic magazine, at a dinner in honor of the former vice-president of the United States and presently nominee for secretary of commerce.

It was the president's first public announcement on the Wallace candidacy since the Senate commerce committee last week rejected his nomination by a 14-5 vote.

Goebbels Prepares Nazis For Further Losses of Ground

LONDON, Jan. 30—(Reuters)—Propaganda Minister Goebbels today prepared the Germans for still further losses of territory.

In an article circulated to the press by the German DNB agency he declared that the strategy which Germany must follow in the east could not be concerned so much with the holding of territory, but rather with maintaining and even strengthening of German reserves and resources to create the conditions for a successful counter-blow.

Cables Now Allowed

Thanks are due to the Canadian Red Cross for another piece of good work. Japanese authorities have been induced to allow men in their prisoner-of-war camps to exchange cabled messages with their kinsfolk in Canada. As there are a large number of western men in those camps, hundreds of homes in this part of the Dominion will be cheered by the news.

It is important to note that there is a rigid limit, and that the minimum, to the number of such messages. A prisoner may send only one cablegram during a year to his next-of-kin in the Dominion, and one only may pass the other way. Relatives are therefore urged to wait until they hear from their interned friends, as they will then be able to transmit any information the prisoners may particularly wish to receive.

If this is not a very generous concession on the part of the Tokyo authorities, it is infinitely better than the black-out which has hitherto been maintained. The long delay makes plain that the Red Cross officials had difficulty in obtaining even this limited privilege for the prisoners and their relatives. The credit due them is the greater on that account.

Those concerned will of course remember that messages, going and coming, will have to pass the Japanese censors. To include anything needlessly offensive might mean that a message would never get to its destination.

A Chance To Escape?

While their war machine is being battered from both sides, some at least of the Nazi criminals may see a gleam of hope that they can escape the punishment they have so well earned. The war crimes commission set up by the United Nations at London appears to be in a state of semi-collapse. Sir Cecil Hurst, British representative and chairman, has resigned. And Mr. Pell, leading United States representative, is dropping out because Congress refused to vote money for his salary and expenses.

The cause of the trouble appears to have been a recommendation backed by Mr. Pell and Sir Cecil. This was to the effect that German leaders who were responsible for crimes committed against German citizens because of race or religion should be punished for these specific acts.

If this recommendation is shelved, gangsters who confined their tortures and killings to citizens of Germany will seemingly be in the clear, with no penalties to fear at Allied hands. Should the commission break down as a result of the disagreement, even Hitler, Himmler, Goering and Goebbels would stand in the same position, unless special machinery were devised to bring these head criminals to trial.

Washington seems to have little hope that a break-down will not occur unless Stalin, Roosevelt and Churchill take action to prevent this, at their coming conference. Unthinkable as it is, there apparently is just a chance that the directors of frightfulness, or some of them, may escape trial unless the Big Three intervene to prevent such a miscarriage of justice.

Wanted, 1,000 Teachers

There are said to be one thousand fewer school teachers than are needed in the four western provinces, 375 classrooms in Alberta being without teachers. Allowing for all possible doubling up of classes and for transporting children from one area to another, this means that 20,000 or 30,000 children in these provinces are not now enjoying their ordinary school opportunities, and that some thousands must be deprived of school facilities altogether.

The gravity of this situation hardly needs emphasizing. The results are not confined to this year; they will extend into the future, in some cases into the long future. Older children who have had no school within reach for two or three years will in many instances quit school for good and go out into the world with less than a full common school training. Younger ones will be set back in their studies, and suffer a handicap for two or three or more years.

The departments of education have of course done what could be done to fill the vacancies, and the present shortage represents the minimum that can be looked for until peace returns, absent teachers come back, and new classes are graduated.

Why was the teaching profession so hard hit when war came? Certainly not because teachers in the vast majority held their responsibilities lightly and under-estimated the value of the work they were doing. Unsatisfactory pay, and unsatisfactory living conditions in many areas, were contributing factors to the exodus from the profession. Salaries and living quarters will have to be scaled up where these have been below par. There is no other permanent cure for the teacher shortage trouble.

Allied Robots

The United States Army Air Force has given out news that it has developed a "good" robot bomb, which has been given test flights and found to perform satisfactorily. This can hardly bring surprise anywhere. It may be surmised that in Britain also, and probably in Russia, inventors have been busy devising Allied patterns of Germany's promiscuous bombing weapon.

The territory included within the boundaries of the Reich does not house the inventive genius of the world—nor nearly so much of it as has been mistakenly credited to that area. The robot bomb embodied nothing unknown to Allied scientists, and to produce these in growing numbers has been within the power of Allied technicians and munitions plants ever since the first one landed in England.

There is only one reason why return robots have not been hurtling into Germany in clouds for months. The Allied peoples and governments do not like to resort to indiscriminate killing of men, women and children, and these long range undirectable missiles cannot be used without such heartless slaughter of civilians. If a robot has ever done any legitimate military damage in England it has been by accident.

To the Nazis this of course is another evidence of democratic "softness." It does not conform to the "blood and iron" creed of their Prussian bosses; nor to their own deduction from this doctrine that "war" consists in exterminating the people of an enemy state regardless of age or sex. But, whatever these practitioners of indiscriminate massacre may think about it, civilized people do not approve that kind of "war."

To that fact, and that only, thousands of German civilians today owe their lives and the roofs which shelter them.

We Shall Get the Peace We Deserve

By P. C. RAWLING, in The Vancouver Province.

Only the most stupid among us on our side of the world conflict can fail to understand the satisfaction of our enemies in the recent outbreak of discord among the Allies. Among ourselves you would be apt to say that only a cynic, and only a peculiarly malignant one, could find contentment in it.

We had better not try to whistle away the incidence of this discord and very certainly we can not exorcise it with comfortable words. We had better try, in honest concern for our fortunes and our cause, to find understanding.

When such a sober and enlightened organ of moderate and progressive British public opinion as the Economist (London) can suddenly explode into fury and scorn about the "hypocrisy and holier-than-thou" character of certain recent American criticism of British foreign policy, it is time to take notice.

It is not enough for understanding to say that our enemy has done this thing. It is not enough to believe that it proceeds from our own perversities or malignancies or stupidities.

There is reason to say that we have all had something of a hand in it, even the men of goodwill, even the people who try to remember always that we shall not truly win this war, even though we march with our rifles at the slope down Unter den Linden, unless we manage to win a peace of reconciliation and security as the recompense of this war.

If these are only counsels of perfection, then very assuredly that is the dismal conclusion of the matter and we shall have to do the best we may, going on in darkness and confusion, hoping for the miracle that our fortunes may somehow be better than our deserts. But that would be making a covenant with despair. There is a better hope than that.

We have the solid achievement of our military alliance to encourage the promise that we can work a political alliance. And even if we admit that it was sink or swim for us unless we banded together in arms, we have the same incentive in banding together for peace.

It has been an immense effort of mutual service and sacrifice to get this far on the road to Berlin and Tokyo; we should be equal among us to the business of making the service and sacrifice not in vain in the coming time.

What then, as far as it is a thing that comes home to every one of us, not a thing just for our civil and military leaders but very much for every man, each to his own business and bosom, can we effectively do. We can do many things, but most of all there are things we can better try to understand.

It would pay us to realize better than we seem to do that this is really a revolution we are in. Of course we all say it is that. More or less we all believe it to be so. But we don't realize it enough, not enough to temper our thoughts and restrain our words.

For the first thing to realize about revolution is that it means upset and violence and countless antagonisms, affecting us all, putting breaking strains upon our natural dispositions. We shall either manage this revolution or it will consume us.

It would profit us also to realize that character in men, in war and in peace, in quiet times and in times of revolution, is more important and more influential than opinion or policy.

It is so in leaders and in parties. It is so, to take the obvious instance, in the persons of Churchill and Roosevelt and Stalin. It is not true—although it is much preached among us—that it is more important what ideology a leader proclaims than what his record is. An honest leader, all in all, is a better leader than a clever one.

It would greatly profit us in this business of riding the world storm to rid our minds of various current forms of cant. For instance, in the matter of self government and what we call democracy.

Do we mean it, for example, when we say we desire the people of other nations (the liberated nations of Europe, for example) to be self-governing? It is a very relevant question for us now. Do we still mean it if they desire to set up governments opposed to our own systems of government and laws? Suppose a nation really desires to be what we call Fascist?

We are apt to say that if you let the people of a nation have a free choice, they will desire "the right thing." But we have only one good, rough, working test of this thing. A people effectively to have democracy must be fit for it. Democracy is responsibility among the common people or it is nothing. None of our ideologies can destroy the immutable law which says that any people has as good a government as it deserves. The machinery of democracy is just as usable for bad government as for good.

Hitler came to power by force and fraud, but he found it perfectly possible to use the formal apparatus of democracy in the process. That is why it is the German people, first, last and always, who are responsible for Hitler and his record.

These are random notes on the present discontents, and a hundred more could be appended. The net result is the same. We shall get in the coming time what we deserve. It is inevitable and irrevocably up to us. We shall have the leaders we deserve and the policies and programs we deserve. There is no royal road. There are sometimes uncovenanted mercies; there are never in history authentic miracles of harvests that have not been sown.

Quebec Angry at Politicians

Resentment Not Directed At Other Parts of Canada

By CLIFFORD M. SIFTON

MONTREAL — "The people of Quebec are mad like the devil, not so much at "les Anglais" as at "les politiciens" who, they think, have betrayed a sacred promise to avoid conscription for overseas.

In the words of a Quebec newspaperman this seems to this reporter to express the inescapable fact of political life in this old province of the St. Lawrence.

After hacking away all the complications offered by the purely superficial manoeuvrings of the exponents of diverse political cults—nationalism, separatism, corporatism, Social Credit and the others—it seems clear that the issue of overseas conscription is an issue of the people, and may be with profit divorced from the constitutional, racial, religious, educational and economic issues which figure large in the arguments of those intellectual groups referred to above.

After scores of talks with French-speaking people in the past few weeks this reporter can find little evidence that any of these extremist cults is making spectacular progress.

However, on one point most French-Canadians would agree, regardless of their party.

In the words of Emile Benoist, editorial writer on Le Devoir, Montreal's militantly French-Canadian daily, here is the argument.

"For the past 30 years, politicians, both provincial and national, have included in their platforms in this province, a 'no-conscription' plank.

"Participation in the present war was accepted by this province with that understanding. We have the words, the solemn pledges of Prime Minister King and of our own Quebec ministers to substantiate this.

"The people in Quebec feel that the result of the plebiscite was not a valid reason for breaking these pledges which in our opinion were made to Quebec and not to the rest of the country, and thus could not be repealed simply because one signer of the implied agreement wished to do so".

Upon this argument a great mass of French-Canadian opinion would agree. That is why they are "mad like the devil". Not mad at conscription as such, but mad at being "trompe"—mad at being deceived.

The English-speaking Canadian finds this argument hard to swallow. Admitting the ill-advised playing-up of the conscription issue between the wars and the undoubted truth of the assertion that the King government pledged itself to no conscription at the beginning of the war, one is entitled to suggest that much water has flowed under the bridge since that time. The plebiscite did, in fact, reflect the views of the majority of the citizens of Canada—and one must remember that conscription is a national not a provincial question. The passing of the conscription bill in 1942 (Bill 80), drew forth in the house of commons from Mr. St. Laurent the following words which Quebec seems to have forgotten or to have never understood:

"No thinking person, therefore, can have objection to conscription for overseas service in the event of absolute necessity. The question is one of confidence in the government to use it only if and when it may be necessary to do so."

However, Quebec is today discontented and a little resentful and it is against this background of political discontent that the protagonists of nationalism, Laurentian separatism, corporatism anti-Semitism, communism and socialism are making their appeals for converts.

How far the separatists and extreme nationalists have succeeded is shown in the results of a recent Gallup poll which demonstrated that a substantial majority in the province believe that the problems of confederation can be worked out on a basis of understanding and tolerance.

In other words French Canadians have faith in the future of this country of ours. That is an important fact for Canadians of goodwill to remember as they try to find their way through the maze of charges and counter charges of extremists on both sides of the Ottawa river.

Future stories in this series will include interviews with those leaders who have often been called separatists and nationalists and an attempt will be made to define the main elements in these shadowy labels.

But here are some essential things to remember about Quebec when reading the views of these men:

1. The Duplessis government was elected last summer on a minority vote after a bitter campaign, the key to which many well informed Quebeckers feel is the expropriation by former Premier Godbout of the resources of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power company.

2. Andre Laurendau and his Bloc Populaire received only about 200,000 votes and elected but four candidates.

3. The great mass of the French-speaking people of this province have expressed their belief in Canada's future and the settlement of the rifts which divide us, through the joint exercise of good sense and moderation.

4. That generally speaking, the average French-Canadian, although he takes his politics in strong doses, entertains considerable scepticism about the motives of his politicians.

5. That the great body of moderate opinion which these facts prove to exist in this province also has its leader—men who do less talking and more working. Men whose quiet words of tolerance and understanding are drowned in the sensational outbursts of the extremists. Men who are devoting their lives to fostering a progressivism which, while preserving the ancient virtues of their people will build a Canadian nation better able to face the problem of a new world in the sure strength of an authentic Canadian spirit.

Canadians

VANCOUVER PROVINCE

In 1939 about 150 refugee families from Sudetenland, seeking a haven in a land that was free from the domination of Nazi Germany, arrived in Canada and were settled on a block of land at Tupper Creek, 27 miles from Dawson Creek and close to the Alberta boundary.

Today these immigrants are substantial Canadian citizens. They have paid for their farms, they have neat, well-built homes and farm buildings, and they have ample equipment for tilling, cultivating and seeding the soil.

Alberta Milk Co-Operatives

By J. H. GRAY

CALGARY—The infinite complexity of the Canadian co-operative situation was underlined anew when a couple of dairy products co-operatives put their cases before the McDougall Commission here. Both are called co-operatives, the cows of southern Alberta provide their raw materials, and that is almost all they have in common.

The Co-operative Milk Company of Canada, Ltd., and the Southern Alberta Dairy Pool, Ltd., are poles apart in organization, in form of co-operation, in capital structure. But both are co-operatives within the meaning of Section 49A of the War Income Tax Act, as it is being interpreted. The chore being done by the Commission is to get out the facts and advise the Government whether or not some changes are in order in the act, its interpretation and/or government policy with regard to co-operatives. Before it can do that, however, it must define a co-operative : 4 it got no help in this regard from the witnesses Tuesday.

The difficulty of the problem facing the Commission can be illustrated by merely enumerating the facts of life of the two milk co-operatives. The Calgary co-operative is one of four milk distributing concerns in Calgary. It has about 60 members who are bound by contract to sell their milk only to the co-operative, and except in cases of emergency the co-operative buys only from its members. It was financed originally by subscriptions by its producer-members and consumer-members, plus a loan from its bank guaranteed by the province. This loan stood at $112,000 in 1929, and has since been reduced to $24,000.

In order to build up its capital position the co-op. long ago went in for a system of deductions from payments for milk and cream. The producers are given reserve share certificates to the face value of the deductions and these were to be paid off without interest over a period of 15 years. A change was recently made in this set-up to permit interest payments of three per cent on these certificates.

Except for one brief and ill-fated excursion into the soft drink business, the co-operative appears to have stuck pretty close to its original idea of selling its producers' products. It has no creamery, but swaps milk for butter with the Southern Alberta Dairy Pool, which is primarily a creamery concentrating on butter.

The dairy pool started out like the Calgary co-op. Its members were bound by a five-year exclusive contract to sell only to it. However, in the mid-1930's it ran into trouble and lost money and accumulated a deficit. Producers, by 1936, would no longer sign exclusive contracts. The pool now accepts deliveries from anyone who wants to ship and pays the going market price plus participation certificates. Its surpluses from 1939 to 1941 were used to reduce its accumulated deficit.

Membership now exceeds 4,000. Fees are $1 a year and, under a system recently adopted, everyone who ships cream to the pool is entered as a member and sent a membership card. Technically, it now does not handle any but members' products, but members are not bound to it. They can sell to the highest bidder.

In addition to cream, it also operates a big honey pool and markets poultry as an agent for a provincial board. Its books show a profit on the poultry business and a small profit from its honey operations.

Mr. Richardson, a chartered accountant, took the stand for 13 independent dairies. He contended that neither was a co-operative under the meaning of the Income War Tax Act and, because they paid no income or excess profits tax, were piling up reserves while the private companies could not. He argued that they were processing rather than marketing and this, he held, disqualified them as co-operatives. Because of their favored position under the income tax act, he contended that the milk pools were driving toward a monopoly in the dairy industry. He cited a case where one pool had paid $37 000 for the assets and good will of an independent distributor at Olds, Alta. This man bought his plant for $6,800 in 1935, and spent about $9,000 on it. It was burned down in 1944 and he collected $12,500 insurance. Instead of rebuilding and starting in again, he sold out to the pool.

Two other dairy pools will have their say at Edmonton.

A man applied for the vacant post of caretaker of a church, but when it was discovered that he was illiterate his application was turned down. So he got a job elsewhere, and in ten years he had made a fortune.

Finding himself for the moment short of cash, he went to a bank, explained his position to the manager, who knew of his success, and asked for a loan of £10,000.

"Certainly," said the manager. "Just make out a note for the amount."

"Sorry," confessed the other, "but I cannot read or write."

The banker stared at him in amazement.

"Well, well!" he said. "And yet, handicapped in such a way, you've become a rich man! I wonder what you'd have been by now if only you had been able to read and write?"

"A caretaker," said the other, modestly

New Towns to Relieve London

By George Murray in the Transatlantic Edition of the London Daily Mail

The shape of the New Britain is gradually taking form—at least on paper.

There has just been published another of the monumental works—a Plan for Greater London.

It is the work of many minds, but its final author and executor is Professor Abercrombie, who is rapidly qualifying for the title of Britain's Master Planner.

The vast area of Greater London he was asked to reshape covers 2,599 square miles and has a population of 6,250,000—or, if the Central London regions are included, an area of 2,717 square miles with a population of 10,250,000.

Within this teeming region, one of the most densely populated in the world, are to be found human communities in all walks of life; buildings which run the gamut from the smallest cottage to the largest factory; a labryinth of roads, railways, and canals—a maze, in fact, of largely unregulated development and decay beginning with the Romans and ending with the latest V-bomb's alteration of the skyline.

The professor has succeeded in disentangling the seemingly inextricable, and has produced a clear and coherent plan.

His main problem was to show how the growth of London and its industries could be discouraged, and how the population could be better distributed.

He makes several suggestions, but his most imaginative proposal is the creation of eight or ten new towns, to be built in the country outside London.

The largest would have a population of 60,000, and the smallest 25,000.

They would be located at Clipping Ongar, Harlow and Stevenage, where small towns already exist, and on vergin sites at White Waltham, Margaretting, near Redbourn, Stapleford, near Meopham, Crowhurst, and near Holmwood.

If ten towns were built they would absorb more than 500,000 people, and would be self-contained communities with their own industries, and a varied range of public buildings and house property.

Industries and population would, so far as possible, be moved out together, and once a town had reached it planned limit no increase in industry would be permitted except in special circumstances.

When all these towns had grown to their maximum size, further industry decentralized from London would have to seek sites in other parts of the country.

Under the plan 1,250,000 people altogether would have to leave London.

They would be accommodated not only in the new towns but on existing sites on the outskirts of London, and also in towns within 50 miles of London.

These great migrations would naturally mean widespread alterations in the existing structure of the community. There would have to be new roads, railways, airdromes and new factory sites.

The plan provides for five ring roads in the region encircling London, with ten express arterial roads, or motorways, leading to all parts of the country.

The picture aimed at by Professor Abercrombie is one of a population shading off from the mass in the centre to the agricultural communities at the periphery, the whole to be backed by the open country—"building in a sea of green," as he calls it.

Dominating all is the Community idea—"at one end the community of the Capital of the Empire, at the other the communities of simple people whose work and existence happen to lie within this imperial metropolitan region."

The region is planned in four rings:

1. The Inner Urban Ring, with a residential density of 100 persons to the acre. It is from this area that the people will be moved to reduce the existing density of population.

2. The Suburban Ring, or outer suburbs, where lives the "average man" who travels 16 miles a day and spends $48 a year on getting to and from his work. The density in this area should not exceed 50 to the acre.

3. The Green Belt Ring. This ring, extending for about five miles beyond the Suburban Ring, comprises much open country.

The Green Belt would be kept mainly for recreation and market gardens, and there is an attractive proposal to "knit the whole together into a continuous system by footpaths, park strips, riverside walks and bridleways."

4. The Outer Country Ring. It is here that the major part of London's "overspill" will find new homes.

But, writes the professor, "not by any means is the surplus population of the Metropolis to be broadcast at random over its surface. Here are wide acres of farmland, with their related towns and villages, and hamlets, and these will continue their time-honored functions."

"Perhaps the most glaring innovation among these proposals," says the Report, "is the web of express arterial roads superimposed upon the existing road system.

"It might be argued that the cost of making these new roads will be greater than a universal policy of widening existing roads.

"Many factors must be taken into account, in addition to the fact that the widened old roads would never make satisfactory motorways.

"Finally, the saving of human life and the reduction of accidents are to be considered if roads can be made more safe. Who can assess in money the precise value of a human being killed on an antiquated road?"

Of the five ring roads, two would be within the heavily populated area. One would be the existing North Circular Road, and another the projected Orbital Road. An entirely new road would be an express arterial highway.

The ten motorways radiating from this system would lead to Gloucester and Cheltenham; Birmingham, Lancashire, Carlisle; Exeter and Plymouth; South Wales; Newcastle and Edinburgh; Cambridge; East Anglia; Canterbury and Thanet; Brighton and Eastbourne; South Coast and Portsmouth.

Ten airports ringing London are proposed, one designed for transocean traffic and the others ranging from Continental to local air services.

It is considered that no drastic alterations or additions to railways are necessary. But the main lines leading outward from London not already electrified should be electrified to certain points.

Saskatchewan To Co-Operate On House Plan

REGINA, Jan. 30—(CP)—Provincial attorney-general Corman said in a statement yesterday that no legislation has been passed by the CCF government affecting the rights of mortgagees of urban property and the government will co-operate with federal authorities in assisting housing developmnts.

Federal Finance Minister Ilsley said in a statement on National Housing Act operations last week that he would invite Saskatchewan and Alberta government representatives to a conference "to discuss what steps those governments might take to enable the act to operate within their borders."

TO ATTEND CONFERENCE

Mr. Corman said that the Saskatchewan government representatives would attend "any housing conference that is called, provided others go there as we will with an open mind.

"We sincerely hope that we will not be asked to Ottawa just to put our signature to an ultimatum. If the lending institutions refuse to assist Saskatchewan residents to take advantage of the scheme the Bank of Canada must do so. We will bitterly oppose any movement to leave us out in the cold because our theory of government is not approved.

"This CCF government is not responsible for the mortgage companies staying out of Saskatchewan. They refused to come in under the old housing acts with an orthodox Liberal government in power in the province.

"Not 100 houses were built in Saskatchewan out of 16,000 in the Dominion."

Mr. Corman said that Ottawa news reports intimated that "Alberta and Saskatchewan will be discriminated against by mortgage companies under the National Housing Act because of provincial legislation protecting mortgagors."

Roosevelt's Son Admits Having Train Delayed

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Col. James Roosevelt, son of the president, arrived here yesterday on a Union Pacific train and told reporters he was the sender of a telegram which caused the train to be delayed an hour and seven minutes in leaving Chicago.

Col. Roosevelt said that when the Manhattan Limited of the Pennsylvania Railroad was running late between New York and Chicago, the pullman conductor asked "all of the passengers" if any of them had to make connections at Chicago.

"He said he would wire ahead for us," Col. Roosevelt added. "The conductor suggested that I send a wire, too. I wrote it out and he sent it for me. No blame should be attached to him. I understood that was the proper thing to do. In the wire I stated that I was on a duty status and asked any consideration possible."

United States Acts to Break Diamond Cartel

NEW YORK, Jan. 30. — (AP) — The United States government filed a civil injunction suit here yesterday against what it termed a "world cartel" in gem and industrial diamonds, which allegedly slowed up American war production.

Nine foreign corporations and seven individuals in the United States were named defendants.

The government also clamped a "freeze" order against accounts estimated at "millions of dollars" in 26 Manhattan banks.

New York State Acts to Guard Low Coal Stocks

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(AP)—New York state took steps last night to guard its ebbing coal stocks, as promise of a growing trickle of fuel deliveries was sighted and Governor Thomas Dewey considered possible emergency legislation to meet the situation.

The freight embargo, clamped on all but war goods Friday was slated to end at midnight last night, and spokesmen for railroad companies said hundreds of gondola cars loaded with coal will start moving into the metropolitan New York area.

However, five inches of new snow followed last night by moderate to strong winds may create additional drifting. In a prediction which the weather bureau said would "apply to most of the state," observers forecast continued snow showers, wind and lower temperatures.

Flying Clubs Assn. Plans to Assist Air Cadet League

PORT ARTHUR, Jan. 30.—(CP)—The 16th annual meeting of the Royal Canadian Flying Clubs Association yesterday endorsed air cadet squadrons and promised assistance to the Air Cadet League of Canada in setting the rate for flying instruction of cadets as near to cost as possible.

The convention also recommended that its 26 clubs make arrangements to give a scholarship per club annually to enhance higher instruction.

Arthur L. Melling of Montreal, chairman of the Air Cadet League, said flying clubs were in a position to offer some inducements to cadets to remain with the league. So far each cadet squadron had financed itself, he said, suggesting some preferential arrangement as to rates for instruction be made.

Better Relations Seen If Canadians Were Bi-Lingual

VANCOUVER, Jan. 30.—(CP)—Jean-Charles Harvey of Montreal, editor of Le Jour, told members of the Canadian club in an address here yesterday that if all Canadians were bi-lingual there would be a better understanding between the French and English Canadians.

Mr. Harvey said that in judging Quebec, outsiders must bear in mind the essential differences of languages, education, religion and tradition. He added that the French-Canadian cut off from Mother France for three centuries has lived in an English-speaking world almost in isolation.

"You must, in judging the French-Canadian, particularly in regard to his attitude against conscription, remember that my people have been subjected to intense propaganda which began in 1905 and except for the interruption of World War I continued until 1940."

Professional chefs realize the importance of flavour—and so will you when you've tasted steak drenched in this piquant sauce. It adds subtle zest that makes your meal.

McCoy Health Service

About twenty-four years ago, I had the good fortune to read a book by Dr. Salisbury which described some startling cures he had made by putting the patient on a diet consisting of ground round steak and raw vegetables. At that time, I was a confirmed vegetarian, but the book discussed such good results from the treatment, that I decided to investigate its claim. I soon found out that this diet was of great value in certain cases. The diet proved effective in selected cases of rheumatism and one of the symptoms which often yielded to this kind of treatment was flatulence.

Pobably the chief reason for the success of this diet is that first of all, it is a simple diet. Also, an excess of food fermentation is avoided in the complete absence of sugars and starches. Although the patient is given a large amount of protein food, I did not observe that any harmful effects followed.

Since that time I have often recommended Salisbury steak and it has since become so popular that it is featured in many restaurants throughout the country. It is deservedly popular, as a properly broiled Salisbury steak is one of the most delicious meat dishes possible to make. It is wholesome and at the same time, easily digested. I recommend that the plain steak be used, without the addition of the rich Spanish sauce which is so frequently served over it. You will find that the preparation at home of this delicious steak is simple and I suggest that you serve Salisbury steak whenever you wish a meat dish that may be prepared within a short cooking period. Combine with the Salisbury steak one raw salad, one or two cooked non-starchy vegetables, a dish of stewed fruit for desert, and you will have a perfectly combined meal.

To prepare the Salisbury steak, buy a plain round steak, then remove all of the fat and gristle. The best plan is to grind the meat at home in your own grinder. This is usually more satisfactory than having the meat ground by the butcher in a mill where there may possibly remain some fat or gristle which is left from the grinding of hamburger earlier in the day. The ground round steak should not be compared with hamburger, as it consists only of the plain muscle meat ground up, whereas hamburger consists of fat, gristle and other portions of the meal.

Form the ground round steak into patties or press it flat into a pan such as a cake tin. Do not grease the tin. Place in a hot oven and turn the fire down. It will be done in about five minutes and rare in about three minutes. The meat will have a rich, crisp brown appearance and has an exceedingly pleasant taste. Since the meat cooks in so short a time, it is advisable to have the preparation of the rest of the dinner almost completely before putting the steak in the oven.

Here is the Salisbury diet regimen. Three times daily, eat a half pound of Salisbury steak with as much celery or sliced tomatoes as desired, but no other food. One-half hour before each meal drink a pint of warm water and also sip another pint of warm water while eating the meal. Also, drink as much water as possible at other times, and take one or two daily enemas to assure a cleansing of the intestinal tract. The patient on this regimen often obtains very satisfactory results, due to the extreme simplicity of the mixture of foods used.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

APPARENTLY Edmonton Athletic Club juniors like to go the whole way when they embark on a shutout performance, for they were all just as hot as the South Siders were cold in Monday night's league session at the Arena.

"Sparky" Milner had only 15 shots to turn aside while blanking the opposition—the first time a junior goalie has accomplished the feat this season—but he did a good job, several smart saves being included in the list.

Practically all of the South Siders' fire was confined to the first few minutes of the final period and just about the time the flame was hottest, some empty-headed goof high up behind the EAC goal blew a whistle—and the South Side show was over. The players thought the referees had halted the game.

BOB MANSON ON TOP

BOBBY MANSON'S five points give him a total of 21, three more than Vince Bannon, of Canadians, who had been scoring leader up to last night. Don Benkie also collected five and now has 17, twelve of which are assists and that's tops for the league.

Incidentally this boy Benkie is quite a smoothie around a net, much more so in fact, than he is generally given credit for. Don gets a shot away fast and it's usually dead on and he's an especially accurate passer.

Jack Duffield gathered up three points and now has 15. His total of 10 assists, the same as Manson's, is second high for the league. Manson, Cyril Thomas of Canadians and Jim King of Maple Leafs are all tied for most goals with 11. And by the way, the back injury Thomas sustained on Saturday prevented him from working out with Canadians last night.

SERVICE HOCKEY TONIGHT

SERVICE league hockey will be the menu for Arena fans tonight, the Edmonton RCAF versus Wetaskiwin Army game being scheduled to commence at 8:30 o'clock.

Wetaskiwin soldiers held the Flyers to a 5-3 count at Wetaskiwin on Saturday and are said to be considerably stronger than when they appeared here before.

Army will have a new goalie, Stevenson, and other players also have been added. Bill Ingram and Ronnie Lane are expected to be with the team.

Big Ken Terry will be back on defence for Flyers for the first time since the exhibition game against Red Deer Army in December. Terry shapes up as being as good a defenceman as has operated in the Arena for some time. He is an ex-Quebec leaguer from Lachine, Que. Mike Kavanagh also will be back in the RCAF lineup tonight.

Clubmen's "Sparky" Milner Registers First Shutout of Season

EAC Juniors Smother South Siders 10-0

Don Benkie Tops List With Three

COMBINING a smooth passing game with good goaling by "Sparky" Milner, Edmonton Athletic Club pucksters recorded the first shutout of the Junior Hockey League season as they submerged South Side 10-0 at the Arena on Monday night.

Don Benkie collected three goals and a pair of assists, while Bobby Manson scored twice and set up three more counters. Ray Moore with two, and John Duffield, "Curly" Blyth and Neil Wilson were the other goal-getters.

Outplaying the South Siders by a city block, with the exception of a few minutes in the early part of the third period, EAC registered twice in the opening period and added four more in both second and third spasms.

The EAC puck men lost no time in getting out in front, for they moved right into South Side territory from the face-off and scored in 10 seconds, Duffield passing from behind the net with team-mate Bobby Manson and Don Benkie camped out in front. Benkie's shot was from about 15 feet.

Don Robertson had the first shot on the South Side net after play had been in progress six minutes.

South Siders did find their icelegs around the 16-minute mark, and George Ego almost beat Milner. The EAC goalie only had four shots to handle during the period.

Benkie scored again a minute before the end of the period, a snap shot following a passout from behind the net by Duffield easily beating Kilburn.

South Side passed up some good scoring chances early in the second period. Frank Lappin shot over the net on a rush with Hugh McDonald and Don McCombie missed the goal entirely on a breakaway with nobody back.

Benkie picked up his third goal at 6:56 when he was left uncovered in front of the net and "Kilby" McDonald and Manson got the puck over to him from the corner.

Blyth's goal at the half-way mark was a backhander following a solo effort. Ray Moore scored from Neil Wilson at 12:35, the puck appearing to glance into the net off a defender's skate.

Moore added another two minutes later. C. Anderson made Milner kick out a hard one just before the end of the period.

Manson counted 55 seconds after the third period opened, Duffield faking Kilburn out of position and slipping the disc over to Bobby.

Manson's second goal came at 12:39 after Benkie hit the goal post on a pass from Bill Pettinger. Wilson scored at 14:51 from Moore.

EAC's continued to burn up the ice and Duffield counted at 17:06 on a relay from Benkie.

Hialeah Blooming Tourist Centre As Jai Alai Betting Increases

With racing suspended, players jam windows at Miami's Biscayne Fronton to purchase tickets on jai alai games. Parking lots are well filled.

By HARRY GRAYSON

MIAMI, Jan. 30.—The bougainvillea around Hialeah's turf course is aglow with purple splendor, the first time the entire vine has been in bloom in years. And no racing! Oh, Mr. Byrnes, how could you?

Hialeah is the one course that has always been put to good and legitimate use as a tourist centre, and remains the rendezvous of rubbernecks.

Grounds Superintendent Joe Morrow's gardeners had everything polished and shined for the scheduled Jan. 17 opening when the suspension of racing was announced. Early January rain brought the technicolor picture into sharp focus. Thousands visit the track beautiful weekly to see the pink flamingos, black swans, the royal palm lined clubhouse drive and the botanical garden that is the paddock.

An average of 500 are at Hialeah daily. On Sunday it looks like a racing day on the clubhouse veranda, with crowds as large as 1,500. The track is a main stop for two sightseeing buses operating daily from the AAF Redistribution Station at Miami Beach. Overseas veterans are as busy as regular tourists with their ohs and ahs and cameras.

Power-view machines enable them to get gorgeous close-ups. Tables on the clubhouse terrace are utilized for writing postcards to the folks back home. Five scenes are supplied without charge. The association takes care of the postage. Cards are mailed all over the world.

Meanwhile the horses gallop around the track unnoticed. They work in the morning before the gapers arrive. Never was there so little attention paid the bangtails. The only ones interested in them now are the trainers and swipes. There never was a more striking illustration that racing is nothing more than a betting proposition.

No doubt because it operates at night and capacity is limited, Director of War Mobilization Byrnes did not include the Spanish game of jai alai in his ban. With all that loose racing dough lying around, the mutuel handle on the players of oversized handball—quinellas and all—has increased five-fold—from $12,000 to $56,000 a night.

The Biscayne Fronton, Miami's only jai alai court, accommodates no more than 3,500, and people with nervous money are now practically breaking down the doors.

In the afternoon, a good share of the nation's bookmakers sit in front of Miami Beach hotels and bet on flies lighting on their noses.

The boys must have action.

Don Steed Counts 15

Varsity Trims Dunn's 46-22 To Hold Lead in Cage Loop

University of Alberta hung on as leaders of the Edmonton Men's Basketball League Monday night when they turned back Dunn's Tailors with comparative ease, 46-22, at the Garneau school gym. The other game scheduled for last night will be played Thursday at McDougall school gym.

Don Steed and Reid Payne enjoyed their best nights of the season as they paced the league leaders to their fifth win in six starts. Don Steed was really "on" to fire 15 points into the bucket defended by Dunns, who were shoved down into third place behind Victoria High school. Payne's best effort of the year counted him 13.

The Tailors were outclassed as they were held to 47 shots on basket by the powerful Varsity students. Harold Russell, who came up with a surprising 18 points last week found the going slightly tougher last night and couldn't find the hoop. Walter Pashik was top sniper for the losers with eight, while Bobby Aitken, playing his first game with the Dunns cagers collected seven.

Varsity opened up right from the start and before the Tailors managed to come through with a field goal by Pasik, they had picked up eight points. Play was about even for the rest of the opening session with the winners adding four and Dunns three.

The losers cut the margin to 12-8 early in the second canto, but the students opened up their attack again and when the half time interval was reached, they were enjoying a comfortable 25-11 edge.

The Tailors threatened in the third and at one stage were behind only nine points, 28-19, but Varsity added a couple of two-pointers both by Payne, to stay out of the losers' reach. Three-quarter time score was 32-19.

The last frame was nearly all Varsity as the leaders ran wild to outscore the opposition 14-3 and win by the wide margin.

Lloydminster Club Trims Vermilion In Hockey Clash

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LLOYDMINSTER, Jan. 30.—The Lloydminster senior hockey squad evened the score with the Vermilion Bombers when they finished on the long end of a 9-3 score at the Lloydminster arena Saturday. The week-end before the locals suffered an 8-5 defeat at the hands of the Art Weibe coached sextet.

The Lloydminster squad was worthy of its victory, but the performances of Bob Howell between the pipes and Kinney on defence gave great confidence to the rest of the team. Vermilion put a well-balanced team on the ice and made many breaks. The superior skating of Hite, who was the fastest man on the ice, meant a lot to the local club. Many a time Hite breezed down the ice after a Vermilion forward who had broken away with only the goalie between him and a count.

Vermilion went into the lead early in the game when Crowell beat Howell with a long shot from the wing, but Sundy and McLean combined to even the score at 5:02. Within half a minute the locals were in the lead on an effort by McLean, Sundy and Hill, which was a pretty combination play the length of the ice. The visitors tied it up in the opening minutes of the second frame, Crowell picking up a rebound off the goal post. Sundy scored three and Duffield one for the winners before the session finished, making it 6-2.

Watt scored the third goal for Vermilion in the last stanza while McLean, Sundy and Hill scored one each for Lloydminster.

Both clubs boasted of players who have seen active service in Canada's fighting forces. Munce of Vermilion is now discharged from the army after having been wounded in Italy. Manyluk, also of Vermilion is at present in the RCAF and Gordon Duffield is home on leave after completing two tours of operations with the RCAF, in which he is a pilot officer and wears the DFC.

On Territorial Rights

Football Officials Confer, But No Decision Reached

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Tom Gallery, general manager of the Brooklyn Tiger football team, said Monday he had conferred with John V. Mara, president of the New York Football Giants, but that no decision was reached regarding the latter club's territorial rights.

The Tigers, who have been offered a one-year lease of Ebberts Field by Branch Rickey, are owned by Capt. Daniel R. Topping, who last week-end became one of the new owners of the New York Yankee baseball dynasty.

However, Topping cannot move his football Tigers to his own stadium without consent of the football Giants, who play their games in the Polo Grounds. Topping, heir to a tin-plate fortune and husband of Sonja Henie, now is believed to be on the Pacific.

It also was learned that Chick Meehan, head of the Trans-America league which hopes to start after the war, is pressing Col. Larry MacPhail, general manager of the Yankees in the new setup, to honor the verbal contract given J. Basil McGuire by the old Yankee officers.

McGuire, husband of one of the heirs of the late Col. Jacob Ruppert, holds the New York franchise in the Meehan loop and is said to have been promised the stadium for his club.

Should the Brooklyn grid franchise be moved to the stadium, Meehan probably will attempt to fashion the eastern hub of his loop around Brooklyn; Boston, where the Boston Braves are said to be interested and possibly Philadelphia with the franchise going to the Philadelphia Phillies.

Other reports had Brooklyn combining with the Pittsburgh Steelers for the 1945 grid campaign and the Cleveland Rams moving to Ebberts Field if Topping transfers his gridders to the stadium.

Statistics Are Released for Men's Cage Loop

Edmonton Men's Basketball League statistics at the end of five games up to last night, were released Monday night by President Clare Hollingsworth. Last night's game is not included.

Next game will be on Thursday night at McDougall school gym between 49th Battalion and YMCA. The contest will start at 8:30 o'clock.

The statement also said that arrangements were under way for the players to throw another game Feb. 10 at Madison Square Garden.

The Brooklyn-Akron game was listed as the feature of an intercollegiate basketball doubleheader. Syracuse University and St. Joseph's of Philadelphia were to play in the other bracket.

Former Glenora Pro

Rupert Whitehead Still Teaching Art of Skating

By GREN ALLEN

WINNIPEG, Jan. 30. — (CP) — Bespectacled Rupert Whitehead, Winnipeg figure skating professional, has spent the most of his life learning, loving and mastering the art of the blade sport. Now he is imparting that knowledge to Winnipeg's younger generation.

Pro at the swank Winnipeg winter club before it suspended operations in 1942 for the duration of the war, the short-dark-haired ice artist has more than 200 skaters under his wing, the majority of them 'teen-agers.

Whitehead learned his skating at the winter club, an organization which also developed a former Canadian champion, Mary Rose Thacker. He was a star amateur and held his first professional job at the Glenora Club in Edmonton.

With the aid of associates, he sends his pupils through their figures at the Amphitheatre and St. John's college rinks. They are instructed individually and in groups.

Whitehead advocates an early start for youngsters taking up the sport. He said the best age is nine, but adds that persons in their late 'teens have developed into champions.

Like every sport, figure skating demands practice, and he recommends as many hours a day as possible. His pupils include 80 members of the now defunct winter club. With the youngsters they have banded together each spring since 1943 to present a monster carnival.

This year's carnival, entitled "If winter comes," will open March 15.

Figure skating no longer is confined to Winnipeg's exclusive clubs. It now is a popular sport on corner lots.

Sports . . . . Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(AP)—No one was elected to Baseball's Hall of Fame on the latest ballot and that looks as if the machinery had slipped a cog. . . When Frank Chance, the "peerless leader" falls seven votes short; when Clark Griffith, a great pitcher and manager before he became a club owner, musters only 108 ballots and when "Iron Man" McGinnity and "Home Run" Baker, whose nicknames will live on in baseball, draw fewer than 50 votes each, the reason must be ignorance or forgetfulness. . . They are "modern" players, but few modern writers ever saw them play. . . So what chance have the stars of the 80's and 90's and even before who haven't yet been honored with places in the Cooperstown museum? . . . There's a special committee to vote on them, but certainly nobody's memory of their feats is getting any fresher.

JUST A SUGGESTION

Before it's too late, how about getting men who saw those real old-timers in action to submit their ideas on who were the outstanding stars of each decade or five-year period.

Purses Increased At Oriental Park

HAVANA, Jan. 30—(AP)—Cuban horsemen Monday won a weekly increase of $650 in total purses paid at Oriental Park's winter meeting after their strike last week.

The track agreed to pay $9,000 weekly instead of $8,350 after a two-day horsemen's strike forced cancellation of the program last Thursday and Saturday. The track also will help horsemen with the importation of feed.

The agreement was reached late Saturday night, just in time to get belated entries for Sunday's program.

Under terms of the agreement, there will be an extra $550 above $9,000 when there is an eighth race on Sundays. The horsemen had asked $11,000.

Servicemen May Turn Out With Civilian Teams

PORT ARTHUR, Jan. 30.—(CP)—Frank Sargent, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, announced Monday night he has made recommendations to CAHA branch registrars that will permit members of the armed forces, on furlough pending discharge, to play with civilian teams.

CAHA branch registrars will be asked to demand some sort of a letter or proof given by a command officer or some other reliable person in the services stating that such a player is actually on furlough pending discharge.

The letter, or proof should be in the possession of the registrar before considering players eligible to play hockey for any civilian club in any centre they may choose for their re-establishment in civilian life, Sargent said.

Today's Sport Parade

By Jack Cuddy

NEW YORK, Jan. 30. — (BUP) — Latest sensation of the winter-sports' world is Frank (Fin) McCool, rookie goalie of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, who today holds the distinction of shutting out the New York Rangers on two consecutive nights.

According to ice experts, this is one whale of an achievement when registered under modern hockey rules that permit forward passing, power plays and jamming. They speak of McCool's feat with almost the same reverence that baseball statisticians accorded Johnny Vander Meer's two consecutive no-hitters in 1938. Naturally Vander Meer's accomplishments were not recorded on consecutive days, occurring on June 11 and June 15.

McCool — dark-haired, eagle-beaked and rather tall for a goalie — hung up his brace of goose eggs on consecutive nights in two different cities, with a long, tiresome trip in between. He blanked the Rangers, 7-0 Sunday night before 15,554 fans on their home ice at Madison Square Garden. The lad with the stomach ulcers did this shortly after getting off the train from Toronto where Saturday night he adjusted the horse collar to the Rangers, 3-0 before 11,492 fans.

ROUGH CONTEST

McCOOL'S shut out at Toronto verged on the miraculous because it was recorded in one of the roughest games staged in the Canadian city in several years—a contest in which both sides used hips, elbows, fists and sticks as if trying to batter the opposition into submission. Sunday night's encounter at Madison Square Garden was about normal, both teams being somewhat fatigued from standing in the aisle during most of their train trip. Accordingly only one fist fight and two gashed brows enlivened the entertainment.

Sunday night's shutout was the fourth of the campaign for the 26-year-old McCool of Calgary, Alberta, who leads the league in that department in his first season of big-time play. He ranks second in general defense to veteran Bill Durnan of the league-leading Montreal Canadiens. Durnan has allowed 77 goals in 33 games; McCool of the third-place Leafs has yielded 106 in 33 contests.

McCool's showing has been unexpectedly brilliant because he is a bottom-of-the-barrel player with whom the Toronto club took a chance on because of the wartime scarcity of talent. He tired out for the Rangers when the New Yorkers were training in Winnipeg in September, 1943; but they thumbed him out because of his phsical condition. That was shortly after his medical discharge from the Canadian army because of stomach ulcers. Accordingly he did not play during the 43-44 season. He returned to his home in Calgary and wrote sports for the Calgary Albertan, meanwhile taking treatment for his ulcers. They improved, and Toronto obtained him.

IN ARMY THREE YEARS

THE brilliant net-tender spent three years in the Canadian army, which he joined after playing two years of hockey at Gonzaga University at Spokane, Washington. —Bing Crosby's school. It was there he also became interested in sports writing. Now he writes a weekly column for the Toronto Star.

He is as cool in the nets as his name implies. His poise features his goal work. He out-waits the shot-makers, before performing a move to block the whistling puck. He does not get excited when the welter of hurling bodies, flashing blades and thwacking sticks bears down upon him.

He tends his goal, as flawlessly at times as did George Hainsworth of the Montreal Canadiens, who in the 1928-'29 season recorded 22 shutouts in 44 games; or as did Alex Connell of the old Ottawa Senators in that same season when he registered six consecutive shutouts. Both figures are all time league records; but they were achieved before forward passing, power plays and jamming were permitted.

CANADIAN SPORTSHOTS

By SYD THOMAS

TORONTO, Jan. 30.—(CP)—The freeze seems to be on the National Hockey League these days — in more than one way. Latest come-a-cropper in the circuit is the United States order cutting down coal supplies for such centres of amusement as rinks. That followed closely the Canadian Selective Service ruling freezing non-overseas discharged servicemen in Canada.

However, interim prexy Red Dutton says he is hoping (against hope, no doubt) that the coal order won't cause any disruption of the schedule. Looking at it from another angle, it mightn't be too disastrous if some games were cancelled—judging by some of those walk-over scores piled up lately.

SHADES OF HISTORY

The pucksters in Kingston, Ont., this winter are cavorting on an open air rink on Fort Frontenac's barracks square—which Kingstonian followers of Capt. Jim Sutherland say was the birth-place of hockey in Canada. The old British Imperial troops played the game there many decades ago, and a Fort Frontenac team appropriately enough won the first game on the rink this season.

MATTER OF DEFINITION

For quite a few years the quaint idea of what constitutes anateurism in sport has been the subject of much banter, with "shamateur" and other terms coined to meet the needs of the case.

Bob (Calgary Herald) Mamini is a trifle heated about the fact the word amateur still is used to describe all hockey teams under the rank of NHL. He points out the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association can't very well drop that contentious second word, but suggests some day they'll brush up on their definitions and list the big-money teams as semi-pro.

Hulse Allowed To Compete in Wanamaker Mile

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Ensign William Hulse, fastest miler in the United States, will be one of four athletes competing in the Wanamaker mile at the Millrose games in Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

Fred Schmertz, promoter of the meet, said Monday he had received word from Hulse, now stationed at Miami, Fla., that he had been granted permission to compete in the meet, opening gun of the major indoor track season.

Hulse set the American citizen's record of 4:06 while Gunder Haegg cut the United States mark to 4:05.3; in 1943.

Haegg, Swedish ace, is expected any day for a crack at the United States indoor marks but whether he will oppose Hulse later this season depends upon the latter's ability to get leave from his naval duties.

Change From Khaki to Mufti Made Easier by Government Plans

Rehabilitation Benefits Include Education, Training and Jobs

Jobs for returned men is Primary concern after Gratuities, Allowances, and Hospitalization.

When Sailor Jones comes back from the sea or Airman Smith comes out of the sky and Soldier or CWAC Brown return to civil life, a large number of courses are open to them. They may return to their old jobs or learn a new trade; they may complete their education or get assistance in starting their own business; they may want to own a farm or their own home. Whatever method they choose for integrating themselves in civilian life again, the means of doing so are at their disposal.

In caring for her returning veterans Canada understands that clothing allowances, gratuities, hospitalization, plastic surgery and pensions are not enough, although the Dominion has one of the most advanced schemes in the world for such aid to the veteran.

Most important of all is the problem of finding jobs for the men who are stepping out of uniform every day, skilled and unskilled, but all entitled to work at living wages. Immediate assistance is given by the Veterans' Settlement Bureaus across Canada, placing discharged veterans in positions for which they have been trained or in industry which will train these discharged men in a trade which will guarantee a decent wage.

A number of acts — Post Discharge Re-Establishment Order, Vocational Training Co-Ordination Act, Reinstatement in Civil Employment Act, Veterans' Land Act —comprise the effort. Additional helping legislation may be enacted as general demobilization gets under way.

On discharge, a soldier or sailor or airman will be permitted to keep his uniforms and personal necessities. Clothing grants will be paid the discharged man as well as a rehabilitation grant and a war service gratuity. Transportation home is another service the Department of Pensions and National Health extends to the discharged man or woman.

BRING HOME WIVES

Wives or children of the Canadian Forces overseas will be brought to Canada where such servicemen have been returned to Canada for discharge. The same service is available to widows and children of Canadians who have died overseas.

District Rehabilitation Boards, Veterans' Welfare Officers and Citizens' Volunteer Committees have been set up for vocational guidance and job-finding, and a specialized service is provided by the Personal Services Welfare Officers who work in the hospitals of the Department of Pensions and National Health.

Private industry is co-operating, as in the case of Norman Bowles and Bruce Gould, who were given jobs with Marchand Calculators, learning to service business machines. Bowles was overseas with the Third Division, serving in Britain with the Queen's Own Rifles for two years. In civil life Bowles had been a clerk in a delicatessen store and had no desire to return to it. As a married man he wanted some assurance of a better income. With Bruce Gould, who left school to join the RCAF and was discharged within a year, Bowles accepted the training job in the service department of Marchand Calculators. The men start at $15 a week, apprenticeship pay, and after their four-year course are earning $40 a week, their wages rising to this figure over the four years.

"I love the work," Gould says, "and it'll be steady. Bad times or good, business machines need servicing. But let's hope there will be no bad times."

An unusual case of vocational training is Gunner P. S. Burd, who did theatrical advertising before he joined up. He was a veteran of the last war, joining the artillery at 14 and being invalided home before he was 16. Now out of uniform again, his ambition was to become a chef, to open his own restaurant. At the Toronto Central Technical School which trains navy chefs, Burd was enrolled for a few weeks' course. When the course is completed he will get government help in opening his restaurant to the extent of $3,600.

Private Ed Gerris, 10th Infantry Brigade, RCASC, went through the blitz in Britain and was injured when a bomb burst on the other side of a tank on which he was doing some welding. He lost his right arm from the elbow and his right eye. Five other men working with him were killed. Gerris' life hung in the balance, but up-top hospital care saved his life and he was shipped to Canada.

SHOWS SOLDIER'S GRIT

Today he is a student at the central college of Shaw's Business Schools, Toronto, learning penmanship and taking a course in primary accounting. Using a glove-covered wooden hand, this gallant amputation case is studying writing with all the grit that made him a good soldier. Principal Eccles has taken a special interest in Gerris and has helped him make progress. Together they designed a rubber-pad "muscle" to take the place of forearm mobility. Together they worked out a metal feeler to fit between the fourth and third fingers of Ed's wooden right hand. A spring in the tube gives Ed a sense of feel when his hand touches the paper or blackboard, so that he can control the pen pressure. Right now, his penmanship is better than most people's handwriting.

Gratuities in addition to the $100 clothing allowance discharged men receive include $7.50 for each 30 days of service in the western hemisphere (except Greenland, Iceland and the Aleutians), and $15 for each 30 days of service overseas, including Greenland, Iceland and the Aleutian Islands. Supplementary gratuities consist of 7 days pay and allowances for every six months spent overseas, plus a rehabilitation grant of 30 days' pay and allowances immediately on discharge.

A Canadian private, married, with two children, who spends one year as a volunteer in Canada and two years overseas, will be entitled to a rehabilitation grant of $108.12, clothing allowance of $100, basic gratuity of $450 (payable in monthly installments), supplementary gratuity of $135.90 and re-establishment credit of $450; a total of $1,244.02.

In cases of out-of-work and temporary incapacitation allowances the grants expire after 18 months following discharge. Grants provide for the payment of $60 a month to single men or women, $80 a month to a man and his wife when the ex-service man or woman is taking training or completing education. When out of work, temporarily incapacitated, or awaiting financial returns from a financial endeavor the grant is $50 a month to single persons and $70 a month to a man and his wife.

Additional monthly allowances are made for dependents; for one child, $12; second child, $12; third child, $10; for each additional child, $8. An additional monthly allowance of $15 is made for dependent parents.

Where a married person or an ex-serviceman with dependents has to leave his community for a training course an additional living allowance of $5 a week is paid. Where the cost for commuting exceeds regular carfare an additional allowance not exceeding $5 may be arranged.

Fully 47 per cent of service personnel in this war have high school or technical school training as compared with 13 per cent who had such training in World War I. All who qualified for university training when they enlisted or any serviceman who can qualify within 15 months after discharge, may receive maintenance grants and free university education. No one may repeat a year's work for which benefits have been paid.

After 15 weeks of insured employment following discharge service personnel are then entitled to the same unemployment insurance benefits as though they had spent the whole period of their service in insured employment.

Preference in employing civil servants will be given ex-servicemen and provision has been made that in all cases of government war contracts preference shall be given ex-service personnel.

Hospitalization and pension benefits for those disabled were in effect before the war broke out and have been extended.

Truly, Canada's provisions for her discharged soldiers show the nation's desire to see them well established. It is the same spirit in civil life which has made the Canadian forces overseas such an admirable force.

Sergeant-Major E. S. Wood returns to his home town, Toronto, meets his family, and prepares return to civilian life. Son Billy, niece Dolores greet him.

Army and other service counsellors discuss future with returned men, advising them as to career; government-subsidized trade, professional courses and job finding facilities. Outside door other discharged servicemen await interview.

First concern of rehabilitation is helping returned men regain health. Man (left) with neck injury does exercises calculated to speed convalescence period. In centre picture Norman Bowles (left) and Bruce Gould learn to service business machines, get paid while training. Photo (right) shows method used to teach Pte. Ed Gerris to write with artificial hand. He also lost an eye.

PRIVATE BUCK—"Doggone it, Buck—wish those krauts'd stop a minute an' put up a fight!"

Wallace Awaits Action by F.D.R.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Supporters of Henry Wallace waited eagerly—and confidently—last night for President Roosevelt to throw him a political lifeline.

With action on the former vice-president's cabinet nomination temporarily delayed in the Senate, his backers got a breathing spell during which they hoped Mr. Roosevelt either would transfer the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and associated lending agencies from the Commerce Department or announce that he would approve legislation to do it.

Senator Claude Pepper (Dem., Fla.), chief Wallace supporter, told reporters "an effort has been made to advise the President" of the situation in the Senate.

"A fact is a fact, even if it is an ugly one," Senator Pepper said glumly. "The fact is that there are not enough votes in the Senate to confirm Mr. Wallace unless the lending agencies are separated from the commerce department."

He was confident that if Mr. Roosevelt acts as suggested, Mr. Wallace would get approval for the cabinet post.

Funeral Home "Co-Op. Puzzle"

REGINA, Jan. 30.—(CP)—Experts on Co-Operative activity today had posed for them the question of who are the producers and the consumers in a Co-Operative funeral home.

S. P. Grosch, of Regina, appearing before the Royal Commission on Taxation of Co-Operatives, said that producers or consumers were required to establish what was called a "true Co-Operative."

"We have a Co-Op. funeral home in Regina; who are the producers and consumers?" he asked.

"Are the consumers, the dead?"

Amid laughter, A. H. Turner, Saskatchewan Co-Operation department official, then on the stand, said that membership in such a Co-Operative usually was on a family basis.

With Underground

Lived 7 Months in Europe Flier Now Back in Canada

By ERIC SANDERSON

VANCOUVER, Jan. 30.—(CP)—Life with the underground forces in Belgium is nerve-wracking but is packed with a lot of thrills also, PO. Ray Potentier, 21-year-old veteran RCAF air gunner, said last night.

The young rear gunner of a Halifax bomber who lived for seven months in Europe before making his way back to England arrived here Sunday night. He is visiting his mother, Mrs. R. L. Fletcher, before continuing to Victoria to see his father, a dispatcher for the Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway at Victoria.

"I really can't tell you much about those seven months," he said in an interview last night. "I was with the Maquis in Belgium, where I was instructing."

Potentier was reported missing March 24, 1944, after a raid over Germany and did not get back to England until last October.

FLYING AS SPARE

"I was flying spare on that trip, or otherwise, I'd never have gotten into this mess," he said. "The regular rear gunner was sick and I replaced him."

"Only other Canadian in the plane that night was Flying Officer, now squadron leader, Van Flyck, DFC, of Saskatoon. He was the pilot.

"We were hit by flak and forced to bail out," said Potentier. "The other boys in the crew were members of the Royal Air Force and Aussies (members of the Royal Australian Air Force). We all got out alive.

Potentier said he landed in Germany "but nowhere near Berlin as the newspapers said yesterday".

"I was paralyzed a little when I landed because my parachute broke, but otherwise I wasn't hurt. I had to make stockings out of my parachute because I lost my shoes. I still have a couple of pieces of those stockings as souvenirs.

EXPENSIVE STOCKINGS

"Pretty expensive stockings but they were alright and they kept by feet and legs warm".

He said the crew bailed out at 23,000 feet and he did not see any of his pals after he jumped.

"It took me about three days to get to some patriots", he said, adding they "took care of me until I was able to get into Belgium where I lived with the underground".

His journey from Germany to Belgium "took about 15 days". While in Belgium he tried to find a way to get to Spain but "D-day came on and I knew I couldn't get through".

He could not tell how he got back to England, but said he arrived last Oct. 5.

Denies Statement On Strike Action

NANAIMO, B.C., Jan. 30—(CP)—Colin Cameron, CCF member of the British Columbia legislature for Comox, said last night there was "no truth whatever" in a statement attributed to him at a meeting here Sunday night. Mr. Cameron was quoted erroneously by The Canadian Press as saying that street railwaymen in Victoria, Vancouver and New Westminster should "take strike action" to support their demands for a six-cent an hour basic wage increase.

Forestry Speed-Up

FORT WILLIAM, Jan. 30—(CP)—Preparations for a post-war speed-up in forestry are moving ahead rapidly, Robson Black of Montreal, said here yesterday in an interview. Mr. Black, president of the Canadian Forestry Association, added that Canadians may soon be known as "Builders and restorers rather than exploiters" of forest wealth.

Boiling to death was made a capital punishment in England in 1531.

Suspect Youth Of Taking Cash

A youth, said to be about 14 years old, was suspected of taking on Monday a metal cash box containing $15 in pennies from the M. Hault confectionery store, 12827 Fort Road, according to city police.

The boy entered the store, asked for a bottle of pop, and was left alone in the store for a moment. Discovery of the theft was not made until he had left the store, police said.

Premier Flays Calgary Report On Refunding

Speculative reports published by the Calgary Herald concerning refunding of the provincial debt were harshly criticized in Edmonton Monday by Premier Ernest Manning.

"The Calgary Herald is determined to prejudice efforts of the government in arriving at a fair and equitable scheme for refunding the debt," the premier said. "The reports published are mainly guess-work. The government has given out no statements on refunding.

The refunding question has been before the executive council for the last six months, Mr. Manning said, where the whole debt question has been under review.

No single refunding plan has been under examination, but rather a canvass has been made of all possible plans and viewpoints, in order to arrive at an over-all picture of the debt situation as it stands today.

"Our efforts are being directed to a complete canvass of the many aspects that bear upon the formulating of a fair and equitable settlement of the debt problem," the premier said.

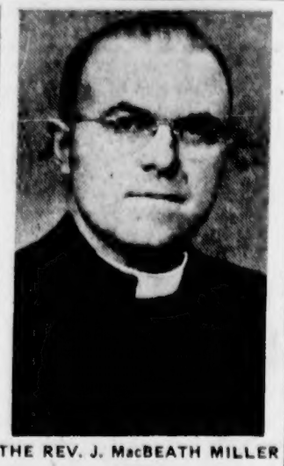

It is probable the Legislature will be given a review of the refunding situation, Mr. Manning indicated. As provincial treasurer, he may outline the debt problem during presentation of the budget. Another course which could be followed to bring the matter before the House would be by resolution, which could be brought in at any time after the Throne Speech debate is concluded.

Robbery Yields Only Small Return

Police investigation into the unlawful entry of Banque Canadienne Nationale Agency, 40 Gariepy building, some time Saturday night or early Sunday morning, disclosed that thieves obtained only $1 in cash and $3 worth of stamps. Report that a larger sum of money had been taken was unfounded, it was stated.

The stolen articles were taken from a steel filing cabinet, and although the premises was ransacked, nothing more of value was missing, it was found. Entry into the building was gained through the front door.

Church Plans Construction Of New Manse

Authorization for a new manse for First Presbyterian church was granted Monday night at the annual meeting of the congregation in the church lecture room. A committee, headed by T. H. Campbell was appointed to make necessary arrangements.

Held under chairmanship of S. H. McQuaig, KC, the meeting was well-attended and heard reports from every department of the church, indicating a satisfactory year. A vote of thanks was moved the Rev. Former Resident Wins Decoration

Former resident of this city, Flt.-Lt. John Ferguson Neilans, son of Mrs. J. E. Neilans, 2140 Epworth Street, Victoria, and the late Mr. Neilans, has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, according to information reaching this city. His father served with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in France during the Great War of 1914-1918.

Flt.-Lt. Neilans was born here, and prior to enlisting was with the Royal Bank of Canada, serving as teller at various Alberta branches. He enlisted in January 1942 and went overseas in September of the following year. He has completed a tour of operations, and is serving as bomber and co-pilot with the Tiger Squadron.

Extensive Construction Is Planned At Jasper Park In Post-War Period

A new administration building, construction of a recreational centre, and consolidation of an industrial area, extension of the fish hatchery, provision of adequate lighting, construction of sidewalks, roads, and other street facilities within the townsite, and new scenic roads are tentative post-war improvements planned for Jasper National Park, Maj. J. A. Woods, park superintendent, stated on his arrival here Tuesday from Ottawa.

He spent Tuesday conferring with John Schofield, Montreal, chief architect for the Canadian National Railways and Trans-Canada Air Lines, and G. F. Drummond, assistant architect, also of Montreal, and Prof. C. S. Burgess, Edmonton, who has completed a town-planning layout of the Jasper Park townsite which has been tentatively accepted by the Dominion department of mines and resources. They discussed development work to be carried out in the park in its relation to the proposed town-planning layout.

FOR RECREATION

Major Woods said the recreational centre will provide a swimming pool, bowling green, tennis courts, skating rink, curling rink and auditorium, and other recreational facilities.

The proposed scenic roads will be hard-surfaced, as will the streets of the town. Hard-surfaced sidewalks also are planned. Under the town-planning proposals the park's industrial works will be grouped in the industrial section, and all will be new buildings. They will include garage, blacksmith shops, and other such buildings.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

A recent statement said that one person in about ten in Canada, will drive cars in the post-war period. This has raised the question as to whether or not quality, rather than quantity drivers should be the rule. What do you think, yourself?

THE ANSWER

A. R. B., railroader: If every vehicle operator were subjected to the rules and regulations of the railroader, there certainly would be quality drivers. I feel that there are people who are no more capable of properly operating a car than they are of running a locomotive. If an engineer makes a mistake, he does not receive a warning or a fine, and then told to be more careful; but that is what happens to an autoist.

R. SILLS, laborer: The statement that so many people will be driving cars will make car manufacturers happy, and the oil companies, too. However, there's the question of that 'almighty dollar', again. If you try to make it impossible for some people to drive, hard for others, and not any too easy for anyone, there will be dissention just as sure as you're born. But then, it wouldn't be natural if we weren't fighting or growling about something all the while.

• • •

VIC OWENS, electrician: I look at the motoring problem this way: Are people any better off today, or will they be tomorrow, when cars start rolling off the assembly lines? I'm beginning to think that the reason so many people have got out of debt in the last four or five years is not because of more money, but because they are no longer running the cars they never could afford to operate. But maybe I'm wrong about that.

Connect Railway Grade to Highway

A. V. Bourcier, MLA for Lac Ste. Anne, said Tuesday that there is a possibility of the highway running from Alberta Beach west to Darwell and Mognolia being established as part of the provincial secondary road system.

Mr. Bourcier, who is chairman of the Social Credit board, said that the abandoned railway grade from Darwell east has been connected at Alberta Beach with the gravelled highway to Edmonton. The last mile was opened during the latter part of 1944.

The member said he had been assured by engineers that there was plenty of gravel in the region to take care of surfacing. Operating of road equipment including a power maintainer soon would bring the road to the required standard of a secondary highway.

Mayor Kept Busy Signing Bonds

Mayor John W. Fry took off his coat Monday afternoon and joined an "assembly line" to sign 3,500 City of Edmonton bonds in connection with the Feb. 1 refunding of $3,500,000 of the city's debt.

He was hard at work Tuesday morning with approximately half of the signing completed. The bonds have to be signed by Mayor Fry and City Treasurer C. M. Smail. The latter is working at top speed as he had to affix two signatures to Mayor Fry's one.

As the bonds are signed they are stamped with the seal of The City of Edmonton, and also the seal of the Board of Public Utilities. A clerk feeds the bonds onto a desk occupied by Mayor Fry and Mr. Smail, and from them they are passed down to the officers stamping the documents. The signing of bonds will be completed Tuesday, when they will be sent to Toronto for issuance under the terms of the refunding.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Other Woman, Man Complex Critical

Wives and Husbands Suffering from Jitters Over Imagined Affairs of Mates; at Wartime Peak

It is undeniable that the women of this country are having a bad attack of matrimonial jitters, and this is the case whether they are single or married. Even school girls are suffering from a complication of heart failure and cold feet over the prospect of not being able to get a husband, and wives of 40 years standing have gone hysterical with fear of losing husbands who are just as much household fixtures as the kitchen stove.

In prewar times marriage was something a woman could take or leave, according to her inclinations and opportunities. Now it has become an obsession. She must have a wedding ring, or all life is cinders, ashes and dust. In the days when men were plentiful girls were choosy about selecting their mates, and even the most scatterbrained of them gave as much time and thought and consideration to picking out a husband as they did to buying a hat.

No girl then, unless she was a moron, would have thought of such a thing as rushing into marriage with a lad with whom she had only a few days, possibly a few hours' acquaintance, of whose real name she wasn't even sure, of whose temper, disposition, family background, social position and ability to support a family, she was totally ignorant, and into whose matrimonial standing, whether single, divorced, or bigamist, she did not bother to inquire.

But nowadays such foolhardy marriages are taking place by the thousands. Teen-age girls are rushing into marriages that are bound to bring disaster upon them just because they have gone into a blind panic over the fear of being old maids. They are suffering from being romance-shocked, which is a lot worse than being shell-shocked.

And even more tragic than the plight of these girls is that of the wives who are adding the horrors of jealousy to the horrors of war, and manufacturing with their own the bombs that will eventually blow their homes to pieces.

It doesn't matter to these women that they have no foundation on which to rest their suspicions that their husbands are playing them false. A jealous wife can turn honest old Darby, who hasn't a sentimental bone in his body, into Don Juan. Provide him ready-made with a double life, without ever sensing that she is putting ideas into his head and making him think that if Maria believes he is such a devil among the ladies, maybe he is. And he is tempted to try out his fascinations on his secretary, or the woman who is his helper in the production plant.

So when poor Maria weeps into her pillow at night as she pictures her husband being surrounded by glamorous females, all with designs upon him, when he is in foreign countries; or when she suspects him of having affairs with every woman who works in the same building with him and when she takes out her pain and anger in making scenes and tongue-lashing him and making him dread to come home, she can't see that she is being cruelly unjust to a man who has worn holes in the soles of his shoes walking the straight and narrow path, and that she is playing the Other Woman's game, if there is another woman.

Perhaps these jealous wives are not to blame. They are just afflicted with the wartime jitters.

Debunker

Instincts are all God-given urges, and in themselves are neither good nor bad. It is the way people allow them to be used that makes them what they are in all human beings. The instinct to collect may be degenerated to stealing or to honest thrift. The sex instinct is the basis of noble marriage, or may be debased to prostitution. The combative instinct may be developed into war spirit, or turned to fighting social evils. Thus all the recognized instincts with which we are born may be trained into useful constructive activities, or bad influence may turn them into anti-social, destructive activities.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

There is no nicer time to play with the baby—as this column points out so often—as that do-nothing period between four and six when baby is awake and often very fussy.

This is a splendid time to give a massage with warm oil after the baby has kicked and wriggled or shoved himself about the wide bed. Relieved of clothes that might hamper his activity he appreciates this freedom and makes the best use of it.

Mrs. S. L. W. wants to offer a suggestion which she thinks may not be new but which she hasn't seen in this column. And this is the practice of giving the baby a systematic massage of the legs, arms and back. "This is to stimulate muscle development," she writes, "and to largely eliminate the rolls of fat which many babies have up to their second year.

"I started rubbing my daughter with oil the morning after we came home from the hospital. Until she outgrew her bathinette a regular rub-down was given after her bath and before she went to bed, as part of her daily routine.

"The legs were rubbed from ankle to hip and the arms from the wrist up. Then the strokes were carried over the shoulder and up and down the back on both sides of the spine. I gently kneaded the body where there was any softness and straightened the legs and arms gently after the massage.

"This was not done on anyone's advice but our doctor approved of it when I told him about it. She has never had any creases to become chafed and not an ounce of superfluous fat. Her muscular development and coordination are better than average. I am offering this in return for the many helpful ideas I have received from your column."

Thank you so much. While I do not think that relieving a baby of fat rolls need necessarily be an aim in this massage, food circulation is definitely one. The baby who exercises freely does himself immeasurable good and afterwards it is both soothing and beneficial to him to have this gentle rub-down or to flex the legs and arms and help him to pull up to a sitting position with the aid of the mother's fingers.

This is all part of good baby care and you have managed it intuitively even without advice or instruction.

Our leaflet, "The Baby's Bath," considers all of these small ceremonies and may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with this request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred, in care of this newspaper.

Captivating "Naughty Marietta" Music Pleases Empire Audience

Thirty-five years ago, the great Victor Herbert, then at the height of his tremendous powers, composed the score of "Naughty Marietta" and many times during its New York run he was called upon to conduct, on which occasions it was no unusual sight for the audience to stand and acclaim him as he laid down his baton at the end.

On Monday night "Naughty Marietta" returned to the Empire theatre to remain for the entire week as played by the American Civic Opera Company, of which Reed Lawton is producer and director. The scintillating Herbert score, as it unfolded, proved untarnished by time, its manifold beauties undiminished and melodically, harmonically and orchestrally just as fresh as when first heard.

As "I'm Falling in Love With Someone" and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" were sung, rows of young women near the front, in unison settled down with an audible "ah" to enjoy them to the full. Not a person in the theatre but was moved by the lovely melodies as they evoked some pleasant memory or happy association of yesteryear.

Taken by and large, Mr. Lawton and his associates have done well by the operetta.

SOME CHANGES

Some of Herbert's music is missing and some sections, notably the brilliant and extended Finale to Act 1 have been curtailed. Music not by Herbert has been introduced, but this has been solely for the benefit of Irene Lopez, the talented Peruvian dancer. Back drops are used rather than sets. This is readily understandable when it is a growing practice in days when materials are scarce and finding transportation is a major problem.

The libretto—always the less good part of the operetta—has been revamped to some extent and some modern gags introduced, such as references to the tobacco and nylon shortages.

The acting was not always convincing, there being some deficiencies among the cast on the histrionic side.

But warm tribute must be paid to Mr. Lawton for his truly great effort in maintaining the musical excellence of the production. In the roles where the singing counts for the most, the principals have excellent voices. The chorus sang with resonance, admirable intonation and throughout, the action moved without hesitation, and always up to the required speed.

GOOD ORCHESTRA

A brilliant orchestra has been provided. Most of the first chair men are carried with the company, while supplementing them are several of the best city orchestral players. The whole added up to one of the finest, best-balanced and efficient pit orchestras heard in a long time. The violin solo between acts by the concertmaster was a highlight of the evening.

The drops were attractive and costumes were all that could be desired.

Thus, the careful attention that has been given to the musical end of the production, which after all, is the main part, more than atones for the weaknesses in the acting.

Mr. Lawton as Capt. Dick Warrington, has a baritone of appealing quality. He exercised complete control over it, producing soft pianissimos or voluminous climaxes in effortless style. One wished he had more singing to do.

Joanne Leonard as Marietta, was vivacious and comely. She revealed a soprano voice of wide range, smooth texture, and considerable brilliance. But both quantitatively and qualitatively it was subject to considerable variation.

RICH CONTRALTO

Hedy Mueller as Adah disclosed a rich contralto which she used to great advantage in her solo, one of the most beautiful in the score, 'Neath the Southern Moon.

The dancing of Miss Lopez was polished and expert and deserved the abundant applause it received.

Charles Caudle as Silas Slick was the main fun-maker and proved himself a talented comedian who overlooked no opportunity for extracting laughs from a willing audience. He was ably assisted by Marjorie Moore as Lizette, an exceptionally able comic and Vincent Gardenia as the Lieutenant Governor. Other members of the company did well in their respective roles.

GETS OVATION

Gina Valente won a warm ovation with her playing between scenes of Chopin's ever-popular Fantasie Impromptu.

Ralph DeCanio merits unstinted praise for his work as musical director.

"Naughty Marietta" will not only awaken nostalgic memories for theatre-goers and music-lovers of long standing, but it will prove a revelation to the younger generation.—J.O.

Protest Against New Curtailment Church Broadcasts

OTTAWA, Jan. 30.—(CP)—Religious groups yesterday appeared before a Canadian Broadcasting Corporation board of governors' meeting to protest any further curtailment of Sunday religious broadcasts over CBC and privately-owned stations.

A spokesman said the question had been raised when a privately-owned Toronto station gave notice it wanted to replace a 17-year-old St. Stephen's Church broadcast with a commercially-sponsored Kate Smith program.

A delegation, representing the National Religious Advisory Council and the Lord's Day Alliance, interviewed the CBC governors. Rev. Dr. George Webber of Toronto said the delegation had no brief but had simply given their views verbally.

"Serious" Riots Flare in Reich

LONDON, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Unconfirmed broadcasts from Paris and Brussels yesterday spoke of demonstrations inside Germany. "Serious riots have broken out in the eastern and southern districts of Berlin and police and SS (Elite Guard) troops were called out to quell rising waves of unrest in the Reich capital," the Paris radio said, quoting unspecified Stockholm reports.

Refugees arriving in Halle and Frankfurt on the Oder staged demonstrations when they found no food, a Brussels broadcast said, adding that in Leipzig Elite Guards fired on a crowd demonstrating against the sending of Volkssturm (home guard) units to the fronts.

Describing the German migration from the east as one of the greatest in history, Dr. Rudolf Semmler, commentator on the German home service radio, said, "It was unavoidable at the beginning that disorganization and rows ensued owing to incompetence."

This was decided at the 8th annual convention of the association being held yesterday. There are 25 delegates and members of the association from Calgary, Edmonton, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat in attendance.

Frederick L. Newnham was appointed by the delegates to bring the matter to the attention of the department of education.

Recruiting Good

REGINA, Jan. 30—(CP)—Lt. Col. A. W. With four days still to go, 373 men had been accepted for active service this month.

Lieut.-Gov. of B.C. May Go Overseas

VICTORIA, Jan. 30—(CP)—Hon. W. C. Woodward, lieutenant-governor of British Columbia, said last night he has been considering the possibility for some time of making a trip overseas in April to visit British Columbia servicemen.

"There is nothing definite," he said. "I have been considering the matter for some time but there is the question of transportation. My transportation, of course, must take second place to the moving of men and material essential to the war effort."

The lieutenant-governor, before he took office, succeeding E. W. Hamber in 1941, made a trip to England in his position as assistant to Hon. C. D. Howe, then minister of munitions and supply.

They were torpedoed and spent some time in an open lifeboat.

On the return voyage they travelled on the battleship King George V, which was making its maiden voyage, in company with Lord Halifax, who was coming to the United States to become the British ambassador.

WE PULL ANOTHER BIG BONER

Every so often the conductor of this column sticks his neck out, figuratively—he hasn't enough neck to do so actually—a little too far, whereupon scores of readers with great glee administer large doses of his favorite medicine—sarcasm with suitable admixture of ridicule and invective.

This time I deserve it. I certainly pulled a big boner—as precious a bit of quackery as I have perpetrated or tried to perpetrate on readers in a long while. Quackery is pretending to have knowledge in a matter of which one knows little or nothing. That's Ol' Doc Brady, for you.

A correspondent who has been receiving pneumothorax treatment for lung tuberculosis inquired about the wisdom of having a baby. I might have made the error without arousing such a protest had I answered in a paragraph. But, no, when I go Quack! Quack! I want to be sure everybody knows about it—so I made the question the subject of the talk published here recently under the title Sorry, No Baby. I said it would be unwise to have a baby, as the young woman's tuberculosis "is presumably still active, else no further injections of nitrogen or air would be necessary. She would be almost certain to infect a baby with tuberculosis if she nursed, cared for or kept the baby with her . . ."

Well, I know better now. Besides the scores of persons with arrested tuberculosis who still receive pneumothorax treatment, several physicians were kind enough to enlighten me on this point. For instance the medical superintendent of a large tuberculosis hospital informs me that many patients are discharged from tuberculosis hospitals with apparently arrested disease—many considered cured—yet they carry pneumothorax. Many of them are women now doing hard work, and they are advised that they may have children and they do have children, and the mothers and children remain perfectly well. The children certainly do not become infected with tuberculosis.

Not content with displaying my ignorance of the pneumothorax treatment, I demonstrated also my ignorance of the significance of the tuberculin test, by saying that it would determine whether a child has too little, a fair degree or no immunity against tuberculosis.

In fact, a medical colleague informs me, it is a test to determine whether a person has had tuberculous infection at some time or other; it does not indicate whether the tuberculosis is active or inactive.

Now may I please pull in my neck for a while? If you readers can forgive me for this one. I'll do my best to get from real doctors the facts concerning tuberculin tests and present them here in a later talk.

War Kitchen

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Shortages of meat supplies cut down on the usual intake of protein in children's diet. But any mother can use milk, eggs, cheese and fish to bring up the requirements to normal.

Even for parties, protein should be included in one form or other. A little planning makes it easy. Here are two ideas which will fit pleasantly into wartime party menus.

ORANGE MILK SHAKE
(Serves 2)

One-half cup orange juice, ½ cup milk, 1 tablespoon sugar, cracked ice.

Mix orange juice and milk. Add sugar; shake with cracked ice. (Increase recipe according to need). This recipe combines vitamin C and minerals in oranges with milk protein.

Baked Cheese Sandwiches
(Serves 3)

One and one-quarter cups milk, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, beaten; 6 slices bread, ¼ pound cheese, sliced; ½ tablespoon mustard.

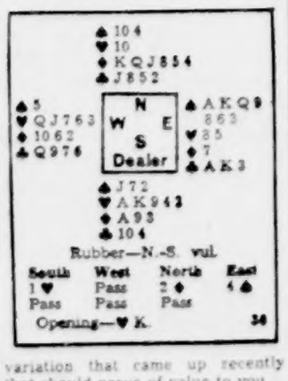

Add the milk and salt to the beaten eggs. Remove the crusts from the bread and spread three slices of bread with mustard; top with slices of cheese and a second slice of bread. Cut each sandwich in half to make a triangle. Place the sandwiches in a well-greased one-quart heat-resistant glass utility dish; cover with the beaten eggs and milk and allow the dish to stand about one hour. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 40 minutes or until the sandwiches are puffy and a delicate brown color. Serve piping hot from the same dish.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Grapefruit, ready-to-serve wheat cereal, French toast, syrup, coffee, milk.

LUNCH: Baked cheese sandwiches, raw carrot sticks, orange milk drink, tea.

DINNER: Lamb or veal stew with potatoes and vegetables, hot rolls or biscuits, butter, cole slaw, dried apricot shortcake, light cream, coffee, milk.

variation that came up recently that should prove of value to you.

South won the first two tricks with the king and ace of hearts. East's pre-emptive bid of four spades practically marks him with a solid spade suit. South would like to make that jack of spades. Is there any chance? Well, if North happens to have the ten of trump and will ruff a heart with it, that will do the trick. But supposing North has the ten and one heart. How can South make sure that his partner trumps high? The first thing South should do is to cash the ace of diamonds and then lead the nine of hearts. This should say to partner, "I am not trying to tell you to lead back a diamond. I want you to ruff this trick high. If I simply wanted you to ruff it, I would not have cashed my ace of diamonds." You can see that if North does put in the ten spot, South must make the jack and defeat the contract.

Modern Florence Nightingale Home From Greek Campaign

LONDON, Jan. 30.—(CP)—"Miss Joanna Stavridi after five years in Crete and occupied Greece has now come home and wishes her friends to know that she is with her parents at Lennox Gardens, S.W.1."

That was the social note in London newspapers. Behind it was the story of a modern Florence Nightingale who stayed behind to nurse wounded soldiers in Greece when she might have escaped with her sister to Africa.

During the last five years her parents, Sir John Stavridi, London banker, and Lady Stavridi, had only occasional Red Cross messages to let them know she was still alive.

As soon as British forces returned to Athens, the 37-year-old nurse, who has been awarded the Distinguished War Certificate of the Red Cross Society, was flown home and now is recuperating from her experiences.

She had high praise for the way the Greeks looked after British soldiers who remained in the country during the German occupation.

War Auxiliaries Receive Greetings

Mrs. C. A. Russell, public relations officer for the Central Committee of War Auxiliaries, has been authorized by the president, Mrs. G. E. Goodall, to send greetings to the various city auxiliaries. Mrs. Russell has taken the place of Mrs. I. G. Jackson, noted city author, who recently moved to Vancouver, thus relinquishing her place as press correspondent for the auxiliaries.

PEACE WITH HONOR

Mrs. Russell, in her letter of greetings, said: "We have started upon another year of anxiety—let us hope that peace with honor may come in this sixth year of war. For those whose loved ones have passed to higher service, may God comfort you. For ourselves, let us not be weary of well doing and let us pray for tolerance and guidance in our actions towards these sons and husbands and brothers of ours who will come back. Let us realize that more than five years will be sliced from home life and many readjustments will have to be made. Mothers will have to expect to see men come home, instead of carefree school boys.

"It is cautioned not to pity these men. Love them and if at first they seem to want other things and other outlets, try to understand without being too obvious. Gradually they will come back to themselves and older friends, but they will shrink from interference".

Lastly, Mrs. Russell, asked that members of the war auxiliaries be patient and helpful to the war brides of Canadian men. "These girls", she said, "are like many of us, who were war brides in 1917, and who longed for somebody with a kind heart and helping hand."

Canuck Women in Battledress Lauded for Duty in Past Year

By MARGARET ECKER

BRUSSELS, Jan. 30.—(CP)—For several hundred Canadian women in battledress 1944 will be remembered as a year of fulfilment.

As each girl, nurse, CWAC, WD, WREN, solemnly took the oath that made her a member of His Majesty's forces, tucked away at the back of her mind, behind the desire to do a job for Canada, was the hope that that job would mean even more than serving at home.

Thirteen days after D-Day, four attractive girls in air force blue battledress waded ashore from landing craft as part of RCAF mobile field hospital.

CARED FOR WOUNDED

As guns barked around them day and night the four feminine flying officers, Molly Mulholland of Georgetown, Ont., T. C. "Pit" Pitkethly, of Ottawa, Edna Millman of Manitoulin Island, Ont., Vera Soper, of Owen Sound, Ont., cared for air force wounded.

By mid-July the first Canadian army hospital had been set up in tents in a Normandy apple orchard and the tragic stream of wounded was flowing into its wards.

OTHERS FOLLOW

Others followed closely and now their number, which includes several hundred nurses, is a military secret.

In those early days in Normandy the nurses in khaki battledress lived in tents.

The policy of the Canadian Medical Corps, the Montreal colonel who is medical director for this theatre, and Maj. Mary Schaffner of Toronto and Halifax, chief of nurses here, will tell you is to bring hospitals as far forward as operations permit.

NOT ONLY NURSES

Nurses are not the only Canadian women serving in France, Belgium and Holland. With each Canadian General Hospital goes several girls of the Canadian Red Cross Corps to act as welfare officers, to write letters for the men, provide them with reading material and cigarettes, and to take hot tea around the wards.

CWAC's came overseas from England when the first Canadian military administrative headquarters arrived in the middle of August with Capt. Pearl Hatton of Windsor as senior officer.

The CWAC's under Lt.-Col. Alice Sorby of Winnipeg, increased their numbers by several hundred during 1944.

The RCAF Women's Division under Wing Officer Kathleen Walker of Montreal and Ottawa, became more than ever in 1944 an integral part of Canadian fighter and bomber formations in Britain.

The WREN establishment overseas under Lieut. Margaret Mackie of Victoria, has, during 1944, grown from a skeleton token force of 31 Wrens and two officers to an establishment numbering in the hundreds.

Lothar Rendulic. Rendulic is former commander-in-chief in Norway and Finland. Reports from Stockholm last week said Rendulic had been transferred to the eastern front. Guderian is a tank expert who won his first fame in the unsuccessful German battle for Moscow in 1941.

Chicago Futures In Narrow Range

CHICAGO, Jan. 30—(AP)—Grain futures moved within narrow limits during most of today's trade. All pits were relatively quiet and easily influenced by orders on either side.

May wheat was weaker than the deferred contracts today. Lack of general interest in wheat was obvious, and traders seemed inclined to await developments of a report that flour buyers were soon to enter the market.

At the close wheat was ½ lower to ⅛ higher than yesterday's close; corn was unchanged to ¼ lower, oats were ⅛ to ⅜ higher; rye was ⅝ lower to ½ higher; barley was ¼ higher.

Patrols Continue Harass Germans On Italian Front

ROME, Jan. 30—(Reuters)—Though experiencing the worst Italian winter for 50 years, Allied troops today were forcing Field Marshal Albert Von Kesselring to keep on his toes.

In one sortie on the 5th Army front an American patrol killed or captured many Germans, after crawling through the deep snow to knock out a German strongpoint south of Bologna.

There was no report of action by the British 8th Army's 1st Canadian Corps which today completed its first year as a fighting formation in Italy.

Monarch Life Annual Report

The thirty-ninth annual general meeting of The Monarch Life Assurance company was held at the head office of the company, Winnipeg, on Tuesday, January 23. E. J. Tarr, KC, president, in submitting the report of the directors stated that the year was one of striking progress in both underwriting and financial activities.

Mention was made of unusually heavy death claims resulting from war casualties. Civilian claims were considerably lighter than normal, so that the net result was an overall mortality experience which was reasonably favorable. Claims resulting from war casualties amounted to 40% of the total.

Full provision was made for all accrued profits to policyholders. The contingency reserve was increased from $500,000 to $750,000. The free surplus was increased to $830,251.59. These and other special funds, surplus to full legal requirements, and set up as an added protection to policyholders, now amount to $2,149,153.74, which is the equivalent of 11.6% of legal obligations.

The interest rate earned was exceedingly satisfactory due to the marked agricultural recovery in western Canada. This was true even though only 6.9% of the assets of the company are now in farm mortgages and real estate. The increase in assets during he year, namely $1,747,693.94 was substantially the largest in the history of the company, and brought the year-end total to $21,066,951.55. More than the full increase in assets is represented by additional holdings of dominion government bonds amounting the $2,039,844. Such an investment policy, while generally characteristic of Canadian companies, emphasizes the important function of life insurance in helping to direct the savings of the people in support of the war effort, and the inevitable result will be the lowering of interest earning rates.

The president noted with regret the passing of W. Trevor Gwyn, during the year, and welcomed C. Gordon Smith who has succeeded Mr. Gwyn as a director.

The general manager, G. C. Cumming, reported that new placed business amounted to $11,750,000. Business in force increased $7,576,000 to $87,329,000. Premium income was $2,174,935, and investment income amounted to $1,174,684. Payments to policyholders and beneficiaries amounted to $1,110,714. Each of these figures for the 1944 constitutes an all-time record. Terminations, apart from deaths and endowment maturities, were at an all-time low level.

The following directors were elected: E. J. Tarr, KC, president, J. Elmer Woods, vice-president, and John A. Flanders, Robert J. Gourley, Dunbar H. Hudson, Peter Lowe, W. L. Parrish, C. Gordon Smith and George H. Stewart.

J. W. McKee, manager of the company for Northern Alberta, reports a substantial increase in business from his branch in 1944.

Allied Navies Have Played Great Role Since Invasion

PARIS, Jan. 30—(AP)—During the seven months from D-Day until the end of the year Allied warships fired more than 140,000 rounds varying in calibre from 15 to 4-inch shells in general support of military operations, a special review of Allied naval operations for that period said today.

More than 1,700 mines have been swept and 68 enemy ships, ranging from destroyers to small merchantmen, have been sunk, the review added. In addition 232 enemy vessels were scuttled, damaged by surface or air forces, or are now immobilized by Allied naval patrols in the few Biscay ports still held by the enemy.

On D-day more than 125,800 officers and men of the Allied navies were engaged ashore and afloat, suppemented by nearly 60,000 officers and men of the Allied merchant fleets.

In addition, said the review, more than 5,000 ships and craft had to be prepared for the actual assault. For the "build up" more than 2,000 Allied merchant ships with a total gross tonnage of more than 4,000,000 had to be fitted "into a complex plan which had to unfold with the precision of a timetable when once the armada sailed and the bridge into Europe had been established."

By the 100th day after the invasion more than 2,200,000 men with 450,000 vehicles and nearly 4,000,000 tons of stores had been landed.

'BIG 3' MEETING MUST BE BRIEF SAYS HOPKINS

ROME, Jan. 30—(BUP)—Harry Hopkins told newspapermen today that the Big Three conference must be conducted quickly because Marshal Stalin cannot absent himself long from the Russian front.

Hopkins said that since Stalin himself actively directed the Red Army's operations and strategy the Soviet leader could not remain away from front operations for any lengthy period, particularly at the present time.

Hopkins said frankly that neither the Americans nor the British know how powerful the Soviet offensive would prove to be or whether the Nazis would be able to halt the Red Army.

Action at Front Said Stimulant To Recruiting

Action at the front seems to stimulate recruiting for the Canadian Army more than any other single factor, RSM WO1 B. J. Barnes of the Edmonton recruiting centre said Tuesday in predicting that the numbers joining up for active service during January would top previous records for nearly a year back.

"The young fellows of military age seem to be moved more by action at the front than by appeals to join up," RSM Barnes said.

And it doesn't seem to matter much whether it is the Allies or enemy that is on the offensive.

Von Rundstedt's stunning blow against the Allies in December and January undoubtedly stimulated recruiting.

SPARKS ENTHUSIASM

Of late the great Russian drive has been sparking the enthusiasm of the young man of military age in Edmonton and district.

"It's undoubtedly action that the young fellows crave. Immediately after D-Day we had a big rush of enlistments and now there is another rush," he said.

RCAF personnel being made available for army service because of discharge from the air force has accounted for some increase, many of these former airmen exchanging their blue uniforms for khaki before they receive their military call-up.

In Memoriam

In Loving Memory of my beloved husband, Capt. H. V. Coles, who died, Jan. 30, 1943.

There is a link life cannot sever,
Love and remembrance last forever.

—Sadly missed by your wife, Marguerite Coles.

In Loving Memory of a dear son and brother, Sgt. William Allen Hobson, killed on active service, January 30, 1944.

The blow was hard, the shock severe.
We did not think his death so near.
But only those who have lost can tell
The sorrow of parting without farewell.

—Ever remembered by Mom, Dad, Mary and Wilbert.

In Loving Memory of our dear son and brother Joseph William McDonald who passed away January 30, 1944.

No one knows the silent heartaches,
Only those who have loved can tell
The grief we bear in silence
For the one we loved so well.

—Ever loved and remembered by his Father, Mother, Brothers and Sisters.

Ratepayers Hold Annual Meeting

A meeting of the ratepayers of the district of Lac Ste. Anne and the hamlet of Gunn was held in the school house at Gunn on Jan. 24, with the object of discussing improvements on the four miles of road between Gunn and Alberta Beach.

The ratepayers are asking that this stretch of sand road, which is but a trail and often impassable in bad weather, be re-classified as a market road, and that it be gravelled and made into a first class thoroughfare.

The road is the nearest point for rail transportation for the people residing at Alberta Beach and Lac Ste. Anne, also it is the nearest road for the farmers of Alberta Beach and Lac Ste. Anne to haul their grain since the nearest elevators are located at Gunn. Fine Response Reported For Clothes Drive

So overwhelming was the response to the "clothing for Russia" drive during the first week of the campaign that Edmonton Red Cross corps workers at the Jasper avenue clothing depot were forced to seek new and roomier quarters in the Healy Motors building, 10459 Jasper avenue. The move was made on Saturday.

Donors are now asked to address their contributions to the Red Cross Aid to Russia depot, Healy Motors building, Jasper avenue.

Not realizing that the depot closed at noon Saturday, many persons brought contributions to the former headquarters at 9925 Jasper avenue to find the depot closed. Proprietors of neighboring stores generously volunteered to "look after" the parcels and packages until Monday when they could be forwarded to the new depot.

UNDER CONSIDERATION

Consideration is now being given to extending the Saturday closing hour from 12 p.m. to 5 p.m. to accommodate donors, particularly country donors who come in to Edmonton Saturday.

Many more contributions of warm and serviceable clothing were received from city and district residents on Saturday. Five packing cases of clothing, the largest shipment to date, were forwarded from the city to the Canadian Aid to Russia headquarters at Vancouver.

Another trucker who has volunteered to bring in parcels to the city is B. Hickey of Rich Valley. Mr. Hickey will deliver parcels for residents of his district.

Among the warm and serviceable used garments received at the new quarters Monday were three men's heavy coats, women's coats and suits and bedding. The "clothing to Russia" drive is sponsored by the Edmonton branch of the National Council for Canadian - Soviet Friendship. It will continue until the end of February.

Army Vacating Govt. Building In West End

The Dominion department of national defence is vacating the Alberta government-owned Oliver building, 104 avenue and 121 street, and the province may have use of the whole building by spring. Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, said here Tuesday.

The building, 150 feet long by 40 feet wide, is two storeys in height. It has been used for some time by the former Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps.

The army units will vacate the premises gradually, Mr. Fallow said, and government units will move in as the building is readied. Front end of the building will be turned over to the province first.

AS MACHINE SHOP

The public works department will use the building as a machine shop, equipment and installations now in use at the south side government repair shops, south of Whyte avenue, will be centralized in the new location, which will be repair headquarters for public works department machinery.

Cancel Lectures To Hear Speakers

Eleven o'clock lectures were cancelled Monday morning at the University of Alberta as students from every faculty gathered in the two amphitheatres of the medical building to hear Professor Gerald Cragg, professor of Christian ethics, United College, Montreal, and the Rev. E. H. Johnson, former missionary in China, principal speakers in the Christian Mission now visiting the campus. "The problems of the world today concern not so much a case of means, as a case of ends", stated Mr. Johnson in his opening address. He then went on to review the chaos into which the world has plunged itself and suggested that Christianity can be the only solution of the problems of the present day.

"Christianity has more of the answers to more of the questions more of the time", Professor Cragg began in his first address of the day. "Christianity is a way of walking, not a way of talking". He then went on to show that education and technical advance is not a way to clear up the problems of the present day.

The speakers were introduced by Alf. Harper, president, and Miss Doris Tahner, vice-president of the Students' Union. Both speakers further elaborated on their talks at an open meeting Monday night held in the medical building at which Anatol Roshko, president of the engineering society of the university, presided. A discussion period followed the evening meeting.

BEFORE THE MAGISTRATE

Arthur Smith, found guilty of assaulting Mah Toy Feet, cafe proprietor, was ordered by Magistrate L. R. Jackson Tuesday morning to pay a fine of $10 or serve 15 days in jail. Smith, the court was told by Feet, was one of a party of three men who entered the cafe at an early morning hour, had something to eat, and then left the place, bearing some food on a platter. The proprietor wanted the dish; the trio departed, with the Chinese after him.

Some of Feet's friends took up the pursuit, raising a clamor, and calling the attention of some police officers. On the street, Feet maintained, Smith pushed him, knocked him down, and kicked him in the back.

Kenneth Walker pleaded guilty to assaulting Maurice Clairmont and was fined $5 or 10 days. The accused, it was said, struck the complainant, knocking out one of the latter's teeth, but injuring his own hand to the extent that blood poisoning set in and necessitating hospital treatment.

Due to a limited registration all those planning to attend are advised to register early.

Regency Council Is Authorized By King Peter

LONDON, Jan. 30—(CP)—King Peter of Yugoslavia agreed last night to transfer his powers to a regency council to be chosen by himself and appointed Premier Ivan Subasic to put into effect an agreement with Marshal Tito for a coalition government.

In this manoeuvre the king sought to straighten out the tangled Yugoslav situation by accepting the resignations of Subasic and his entire cabinet which he had demanded Jan. 22 and then reappointing the premier and five of the six members of the former cabinet.

The announcement by the information department of the Yugoslav government said the king's instructions ordered the new government to observe the reservations made in his communique of Jan. 11, at which time Peter objected to the form of the proposed regency and to what he called its unrestricted legislative powers.

RESULT OF TALKS

The new developments in the Yugoslav situation came after repeated conferences between the King and Subasic, who had defied a dismissal order issued by the young monarch Jan. 22.

The King said he would turn over his powers to a recency council to be chosen by himself.

In effect, King Peter's action yesterday was compliance with the ultimatum of Prime Minister Churchill, who told the House of Commons recently that the young king would have to accept a regency or else his acceptance would be assumed and the arrangement between Subasic and Tito for an interim government would be put into effect anyway.

Annual Meets Indicate Alberta Towns are Economically Stable

FERINTOSH: Annual meeting of the village was held under the chairmanship of A. Norman. The financial report shows a surplus of assets over liabilities of $8,294.-17. Cash on hand is $1,336.05.

The annual meeting of the Ferintosh School ratepayers was held at the town hall with J. D. Johnstone, chairman. The financial report showed $1,398.52, cash on hand. Carl Richmond was chosen as trustee in place of William Kuhnke.

LACOMBE: Ratepayers held their annual meeting for the first time in 14 years. On previous occasions, there had been insufficient attendance to form a quorum. Mayor T. Wilkes explained the circumstances which made necessary a new assessment of all business and residential property this year, and members of the town council answered many questions regarding civic affairs. The mayor said that several new sewer and water lines had been laid in 1944, and that as these had not been included in the budget, there had been a deficit of about $900 on the year's operations. Chairman W. N. Morrison of the School Board dealt briefly with matters affecting the operations of the local school.

VERMILION: Ratepayers met in the Memorial Hall when Ashley Cooper was elected chairman and Thomas Watts, secretary. H. R. Parker, hospital representative, gave an account of the year's work of the Hospital Board. Chairman D. Taylor of the School Board reported that during the year a commercial teacher had been added to the high school staff. Medical attendance and vitamin pills had been provided for the pupils with beneficial results. Hot lunches are provided. A resolution was passed asking the board to provide training in shop and home economics. Mayor Morrison addressed the ratepayers. During the eight years that he has been mayor, arrears of taxes had been practically wiped out. The electric light, power and heat plant has been put on a paying basis and has a reserve fund of about $25,500.

PONOKA: Mayor R. H. Jones presided at the annual town meeting when reports were heard from the school board, by W. Kankewit, financial statement by Secretary A. Eastes; finance committee, C. Stowell; school management, G. Noble; building, A. H. Kelley; grounds, E. Hinkley. Payment of debenture indebtedness at a lower rate of interest has saved ratepayers $8,400. Change in the teachers' salary schedule is expected shortly and the overcrowded school condition was discussed. Reserve of $5,000 is held by the town in bonds. No large increase in the mill rate was anticipated this year. Electric light department brought in a yearly surplus that reduced taxes by almost 15 mills. Pasteurization plant had been operated successfully. Five fires were reported during the year. Report on the proposed new hospital was given by Messrs. Galbraith and Noble.

VETERAN IS HONORED—Above are 48-year-old Sgt. Leonard Willans of the Canadian Army (centre) with his two sons, Driver Herbert Arthur Willans, Canadian Armored Corps (left), and Sgmn. He is a veteran of the Great War of 1914-1918 and spent almost three years in France and Flanders, seeing action at Vimy Ridge, Hill 70, Amiens, Arras, Ypres, Lens and Passchendaele, with the 60th and 87th Battalions. Later in the war he transferred to the RAF, training as a pilot. After the Armistice he returned to Canada and in 1919 settled at Bruce where he farmed until he enlisted in the present war, in July, 1940, with the RCASC. He was stationed at Calgary and Camp Borden until 1941 when he went overseas, spending some time in England and arriving in Italy Nov. 9, 1943. He was born and educated at Ottawa. In the army his knowledge of the German language has proved useful. His two sons, Herbert, 21 years old, and Elwood, 22, are with their father in Italy. Mrs. Willans and daughter, Muriel, live at Bruce.

Suggests Robbery Motive in Slaying Of Ontario Woman

TORONTO, Jan. 30—(CP)—Claiming two purses, which he believed to contain approximately $230, were empty when he found them after the slaying of his wife, William Casovan yesterday suggested robbery as the motive for the crime. He was testifying at the trial of Stanley Augustine, charged with the murder of Nellie Casovan, 38, on Oct. 13. Casovan and his nine-year-old son, Raymond, were first crown witnesses as the trial opened yesterday. Raymond identified the 42-year-old Polish carpenter as the man he saw wandering through the bedroom in which the body of his mother lay.

Royal Canadian Mounted and military police co-operated in the search for missing men, but officials said that winter conditions made their apprehension more difficult and the co-operation of civilians in giving information leading to the discovery of absentees was sought.

Going Back to Farm After Paris No Problem for Hobbema Soldier

HOBBEMA: Held prisoner by the retreating Nazi Wehrmacht in Europe for three weeks, Pte. Alex G. Minde has returned home from overseas, hoping to re-establish himself after the war as a farmer.

The two-war problem of "how you gonna keep him down on the farm after he's seen Paree" is easily solved by Pte. Minde. His view of Paris was that of a POW, and he was not impressed. Crossing the English Channel to France with an artillery unit shortly after D-Day, he fought his way to the French capital only to be captured and held prisoner there by the Nazis for three weeks.

When Paris was liberated, he rejoined the Canadians. His reunion was shortlived, however. In August he received a shrapnel wound in the leg, and instead of continuing to Berlin with "the rest of the boys" as he'd hoped, he was handed a first class passage on a homegoing hospital ship.

ALBERTA TRAINED

The soldier is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Minde of Hobbema. A native son of this town, he was educated at the Hobbema Roman Catholic School, and worked on his father's farm prior to enlisting as rifleman in the Canadian Army in November, 1941. He received his training at Camrose and Calgary and spent three years in England before seeing European action.

He believes the war will last until the enemy is thoroughly beaten—which may take some time yet. Meanwhile, he's enjoying some well-earned rest and looking into the farming situation.
